INTRODUCTION

Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race

You can't compare it to any other competitive event in the world. A nearly 1,000-mile race over the roughest, most beautiful terrain Mother Nature has to offer, it throws jagged mountain ranges, frozen rivers, dense forests, desolate tundra and miles of windswept coast at mushers and their dog teams.

(Note: In 2012, the northern route distance changed to approximately 975 miles and the southern route to approximately 998 miles. In prior years, the distance was always more than 1,000 miles. Three things factor into this adjustment: the new ceremonial start location, which now runs from downtown Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip; the new restart location, which is now runs from Wasilla to Willow and factors in the loss of the Wasilla-Knik-Susitna River as well as some Yentna River mileage; and finally, the year-to-year trail conditions, which often result in rerouting and cause the trail distance to vary slightly each year. In addition, "1,049 miles" has been a symbolic figure since the inception of the race to signify the more than 1,000 miles of race trail, with the number 49 depicting Alaska as the 49th state).

Add temperatures far below zero, winds that can cause a complete loss of visibility, the hazards of overflow, long hours of total darkness and treacherous climbs to hundreds of miles of jagged terrain and you have the Iditarod – a race extraordinaire only possible in the Last Frontier. From the city of Anchorage in Southcentral Alaska to Nome on the western Bering Sea coast, each team of 12-to-16 dogs and its musher cover more than 975 miles in 9-to-17 days.

It has been called the "Last Great Race on Earth" and has won worldwide acclaim and interest. German, Spanish, British, Japanese and American film crews have covered the event. Journalists from outdoor magazines, adventure magazines, newspapers and wire services flock to Anchorage and Nome to record the excitement. It's not just a sled dog race; it's a race in which unique men and woman compete. Mushers enter from all walks of life. Fishermen, lawyers, doctors, miners, artists, Alaska Natives, Canadians, Swiss, French and others; men and women each with their own story, each with their own reasons for going the distance. It's a race organized and run primarily by thousands of volunteers made up of men and women, students and village residents. They man headquarters in Anchorage, Nome and Wasilla. They fly in dog food and supplies. They act as checkers, coordinators, veterinarians and family supporters of each musher.

"THE LAST GREAT RACE ON EARTH"

The race puts man and animal against nature; against wild Alaska at her best. As each mile is covered, a tribute to Alaska's past is issued. The Iditarod is a tie to a commemoration of that colorful past.

The Iditarod Trail, now a national historic trail, had its beginnings as a mail and supply route from the coastal towns of Seward and Knik to the Interior mining camps at Flat, Ophir, Ruby and beyond, to the west coast communities of Unalakleet, Elim, Golovin, White Mountain and Nome. Mail and supplies went in, gold came out – all via dog sled. Heroes were made; legends were born.

AN EVENT FOR ALL ALASKA

Anchorage is the ceremonial starting line, a city of more than 301,000 people, street lights, freeways and traffic. From there, a field of dog teams, which varies in number each year, runs to Campbell

Airstrip, approximately 20 miles. After a restart the following day in the Matanuska Valley at Willow, the mushers leave the land of highways and bustling activity and head out to the Yentna Station Roadhouse and Skwentna, then up through Finger Lake, Rainy Pass, over the Alaska Range, down the other side to the Kuskokwim River, Rohn Roadhouse, Nikolai, McGrath, Takotna, Ophir, Cripple and on to the mighty Yukon at Ruby a river highway that takes the teams west through the Arctic tundra.

The race route alternates every other year, one going north through Cripple, Ruby and Galena, and the other south through Iditarod, Shageluk and Anvik.

Finally, they're on the coast of Unalakleet, Shaktoolik, Koyuk, Elim, Golovin and White Mountain before the last stretch into Nome where a hero's welcome awaits.

The route encompasses large metropolitan areas and small Native villages. It causes a yearly spurt of activity, increased airplane traffic and excitement to areas otherwise quiet and dormant during the long Alaska winter. Everyone gets involved from very young school children to the old timers who relive the colorful past of Alaska as they watch each musher and his team. The race is an educational opportunity and an economic stimulus to these small Alaska outposts.

THE BEGINNING

The Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race first ran to Nome in 1973, after two short races on part of the Iditarod Trail in 1967 and 1969. The idea of having a race over the Iditarod Trail was conceived by the late Dorothy G. Page. In 1964, Page was chairman of the Wasilla-Knik centennial committee. Her task was to find projects to celebrate the centennial year in 1967.

She was intrigued that dog teams could travel over land that was not accessible by automobile. In the early 1920s, settlers had come to Alaska following a gold strike. They traveled by boat to the coastal towns of Seward and Knik and from there, by land into the gold fields. The trail they used is today known as the Iditarod Trail, one of the national historic trails designated by the Congress of the United States. In the winter, the only means of travel was by dog team.

The Iditarod Trail soon became the major thoroughfare through Alaska. Mail was carried across the trail, people used it trail to get from place to place and supplies were transported via the Iditarod Trail. Priests, ministers and judges also traveled between villages via dog team.

All too soon, the gold mining began to slack off. People began to go back to where they had come from and suddenly there was less travel on the Iditarod Trail. The use of the airplane in the late 1920s signaled the beginning of the end for the dog team as a standard mode of transportation, and of course with the airplane carrying the mail, there was less need for land travel. The final blow to the use of the dog team came with the appearance of snowmobiles.

By the mid '60s, most people in Alaska didn't even know there was an Iditarod Trail or that dog teams had played a very important role in Alaska's early settlement. Page, a resident of Wasilla and self-made historian, recognized the importance of recognizing the use of sled dogs as working animals and of the Iditarod Trail as well as the important part it played in Alaska's colorful history. She presented the possibility of a race over the Iditarod Trail to an enthusiastic Joe Redington Sr., a musher from the Knik area. Soon Page and Redington began promoting the idea of the Iditarod Race to the extent that Joe and Vi Redington moved to the Knik area at Flat Horn Lake, just 30 miles out of Knik, and never moved back.

The Aurora Dog Musher's Club, along with men from the Adult Camp in Sutton, helped clear years of overgrowth from the first nine miles of the Iditarod Trail in time to put on the first short Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race in 1967. A $25,000 purse was offered at the race, with Joe and Vi Redington donating one acre of their land at Flat Horn Lake, adjacent to the Iditarod Trail, to help raise the funds. The land was subdivided into square-foot lots and sold with a deed and special certificate of ownership, raising $10,000 toward the purse. Contestants from all over Alaska and even two contestants from Massachusetts entered the first Iditarod race. However, it was newcomer Isaac Okleasik, from Teller, Alaska, who won the race with his team of large working dogs. The short race – approximately 27 miles – was put on again in 1969.

The goal was to have the race go all the way to the ghost town of Iditarod in 1973. However, in 1972, the U.S. Army reopened the trail as a winter exercise and in 1973, the decision was made to take the race over 1,000 miles to Nome. Redington and Page were instrumental in getting the first long Iditarod on its way to Nome in 1973, amidst comments that it couldn't be done. There were many that believed it was crazy to send a bunch of mushers out into the vast uninhabited Alaska wilderness. But the race went! Twenty-two mushers finished that year. Since 1973, there have been 718 finishers and a total of 2,008 racers to cross the finish line, as of 2013. Mushers from 23 states, five continents – including North America, South America, Europe, Asia and Australia – and 21 foreign countries – Argentina, Austria, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Norway, Russia, Serbia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom – have finished the Iditarod race, including 120 women.

The late Dorothy G. Page, who is considered the “Mother of the Iditarod,” is quoted in the October 1979 issue of the Iditarod Runner on her intent for the race: “To keep the spirit of the Iditarod the same. I don't ever want to see any high-pressure people getting in and changing the spirit of the race. We brought the sled dog back and increased the number of mushers. It is really an Alaska event. I think the fact that it starts in Anchorage and ends in Nome opens up a whole new area for people in Alaska. I think they appreciate that. It puts them in touch with the pioneer spirit.”

IDITAROD TODAY

The race has started in downtown Anchorage since 1983. The 44th Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race will begin on Saturday, March 5, 2016. The teams will leave the start line at the corner of Fourth Avenue and D Street at two-minute intervals starting at 10 a.m. About 86 teams are expected.

The mushers follow streets and bike trails through Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip. From there, the dogs are loaded into dog trucks and taken home for the night. While the race actually starts in Anchorage, in 1995, the rules were changed so that the Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip – originally to Eagle River – portion does not count in the overall time to Nome.

On Sunday, March 6, mushers will line up at the restart area in Willow, Alaska about 70 miles north of Anchorage. At 2 p.m., the first team will depart on its way to Nome.

From Willow, they head over Willow Lake and wind through typical northern forests of birch and spruce, cross frozen swamps and lakes before dropping onto the Big Susitna River and heading toward Yentna Station. The area between Willow Lake and Yentna Station, approximately 45 miles, has been dubbed the world's longest tailgate party to this day, as spectators set up camps with bonfires, banners, food and sprits to cheer the teams on as they make their way to Nome.

It is impossible to predict the exact day or time that the first musher will cross the finish line in Nome. However, we typically expect it to be between eight and 10 days, making it on Monday or Tuesday. 2014 Iditarod Champion Dallas Seavey completed the race in eight days, 13 hours, four minutes, 19 seconds, which is a new Iditarod record.

BEHIND THE SCENES

It takes so much more than a field of willing mushers and anxious sled dogs to run the Iditarod Trail race. With the annual race budget of over $2.5 million dollars, the Iditarod Trail Committee depends on a hardworking force of volunteers and supporters to raise the necessary money all year around. Our race sponsors supply over $2 million in cash donations and/or goods and services. A semi-annual raffle is held as well as an Idita-Rider Musher Auction, where bidders place bids of $500-$7,500 on entered mushers to ride in their sled at the Anchorage Ceremonial Start for the first 11 miles. Iditarod gift shops in the Anchorage and Wasilla area sell Iditarod merchandise year round. Merchandise is also sold at the Alaska State Fair and on other special occasions during the year. Banquets are planned in both Anchorage and Nome. This volunteer force and the loyal supporters from both the private and business sectors make the race possible each year.

Information headquarters are set up in Anchorage, Nome and Wasilla during the race to disseminate information and race standings to the public. Volunteers man each of the 20 plus checkpoints, including some who spend their vacations on the trail. A complex communications net covers the course offering logistical support, emergency communications and an information source for race officials. The Iditarod Air Force is a fleet of small, privately-owned bush planes flown by volunteers, that shuttle dog food and mushers' supplies to each checkpoint, moving veterinarians and race officials up and down the trail, hauling tired dropped dogs back to the major pickup points. A group of veterinarians from all over the United States, and sometimes even from other countries, take time out from their busy practices to assist with dog care duties along the trail. Trail breakers on snow machines precede the field of mushers, cutting trail, marking trail, packing trail in windswept areas, trying to give each team a safe path to follow.

Without these volunteers, there wouldn't be a race. Their efforts save the committee thousands of dollars, which would be nearly impossible to raise otherwise. Their dedication and involvement is what this historic Alaska event is all about.

ON THE TRAIL

The rules of the race lay out certain regulations. There are pieces of equipment each team must have: an Arctic parka, a heavy sleeping bag, an ax, snowshoes, musher food, dog food and booties for each dog's feet to protect against cutting ice and hard-packed snow injuries.

Whether they run during the day or night, each musher has a different strategy on and off the trail. In addition, each has a different approach for dog care, dog diet, dog stamina as well as their own personal ability. Mushers spend an entire year getting ready and raising the money needed to get to Nome. Some even prepare around a full-time job. In addition to planning the equipment and feeding needs for three weeks on the trail, hundreds of hours and miles of training have to be put in on each team.

MEDIA INFORMATION

Media credential applications due by Feb. 19, 2016

Applications can be found at <http://iditarod.com/resources/press-media/>

Media briefing will be held at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, March 2, 2016, at The Lakefront Anchorage, at 4800 Spenard Road.

Media must attend the briefing in order to pick up media credentials. This is the ONLY time media can pick up credentials for Anchorage or Willow. Any media that do not attend the briefing will not receive credentials.

The media briefing is where you will receive information needed for covering the ceremonial start, restart and the trail.

Important: If you plan to take a laptop on the trail, please bring it to the media briefing where GCI technicians will be available to configure your laptop for use on the trail.

NOME MEDIA BRIEFING

Mini-Convention Center
409 River Street
Nome, AK 99762

Projected Finish Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2016

Several hours before the projected finish there will be a distribution of finish line badges. Badges are limited.

Note: The badges used along the trail and in Anchorage will not allow media into the finish chute in Nome.

Signs will be posted in the Nome Mini-Convention Center once the time and date of the briefing is determined.

Credential Guidelines

When applying for media credentials for the 2016 race, please read these guidelines prior to filling out an application to ensure you meet eligibility requirements.

- You must be on assignment from a media outlet and provide details of the assignment.
- Specialty photography and personal website photography are not considered valid assignments. Freelance media are required to detail and submit proof of assignment when submitting an application to media@iditarod.com.
- Media credentials will not be issued if supporting documentation is not emailed at the time of application. Partial applications will not be approved.
- Media credentials can be picked up at the media briefing on Wednesday, March 3, 2016 at 1 p.m. at The Lakefront Anchorage. Credentials cannot be picked up prior to the briefing and media must attend the briefing in order to receive credentials.
- Media credentials issued are not transferable and may be revoked at any time. There is a fee for lost media credentials.
- Receiving credentials in the past does not guarantee future approvals.

In evaluating all media credential applications, the Iditarod Trail Committee (ITC) will consider the following:

- Previous journalism experience.
- The commercial nature of any website, including advertisers.
- The amount of content produced.
- How the content will be used.
- How long the outlet has been in existence, its audience, and circulation/unique visitors numbers.

Media Guidelines

- The Iditarod is exclusive owner of any and all of its intellectual property rights, including, but not limited to trademarks, copyrights, and other proprietary rights. Each credential authorizes the media the right to use Iditarod trademarks in its news coverage of the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race. Media is not authorized to use trademarks in non-news contexts, specifically for commercial purposes unless a separate license or permission is obtained from the Iditarod.
- Any and all use of any non-text content owned by ITC must first be approved by ITC, and if approved, shall not have any sponsorship or advertising integrated with or around the content in such a way that implies an endorsement or sponsorship relationship between Iditarod and another third party. Further, such content may not be sold or licensed without approval by ITC in writing and shall not include live or tape delayed transmissions of any portion of any Iditarod Race or related event except for taped highlights used for news coverage, unless otherwise approved by Iditarod.
- The media applicant assumes all risk and danger incidental to the race, as well as any risk or danger reasonably foreseeable while covering the race and assumes the risk and releases the ITC, its employees, members, directors, officers, volunteers, sponsors, mushers, and all agents thereof from any and all liabilities resulting from injuries or personal property loss occurring during or after the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race.
- The media applicant jointly and severally indemnify, defend and hold the ITC harmless from and against any and all claims, actions, damages, liabilities, costs or expenses arising out of or in connection with any act or omission done, or alleged to have been done by media, including without limitation, media applicant(s) breach of any term of this credential. In case of any dispute regarding the terms and conditions of this agreement Alaska law will apply, without regard to choice of law principles.

Official Media

- Iditarod Insider Productions, Sportsman Channel, Denali Media (KTVA-TV) and Ohana Media Group have preferential access and positioning and are identified by a credential that indicates they are “Official Media.”

Dog Team and Trail Etiquette and Expectations:

- Media credentials must be worn in all checkpoints and specified media areas.
- Dog teams always have the right-of-way, no exceptions.
- Do not touch sled dogs without musher approval.
- Do not help mushers unless they ask for your help. Strict rules are in place against mushers receiving outside assistance.
- Do not intrude on a musher if he/she indicates they do not wish to be disturbed. This includes taking photos of the musher and their dogs.

- Do not ask to interview a musher during any medical exam of the dogs and/or musher.
- Media must stay clear of a team upon its arrival into a checkpoint. Race personnel require immediate access to the musher and dog team. When the check-in process is completed and the dogs have been taken care of, mushers can then give consent to be interviewed.
- Media are not allowed inside the dog parking/staging area (where dogs are fed and rested) without prior approval of the race judge or race marshal. The musher and/or race judge or race marshal must escort media in these areas. Drop dog areas are restricted to mushers and race personnel only. Media are permitted to take photos of mushers and dogs from outside the dog staging area.
- Media are expected to ensure they have appropriate escorts or expertise for trail travel. Any on trail coverage plans must be fully detailed and discussed with ITC.
- Food, equipment, shelter, Internet and phone connectivity provided by the Iditarod are for race communications and race personnel only.
- Flash photography or the use of artificial lighting is only permissible in the immediate vicinity of the checkpoints. Flash photography is forbidden on the trail unless arrangements have been made beforehand.
- In the event that a race official or musher considers the conduct of media to be detrimental or obstructive to them or the race they may register a protest against any media personnel. Current and future media credentials could be revoked or denied.
- Nome Finish: There will be a pre-finish media briefing, which all credentialed media traveling to Nome should attend. Information regarding access to the winning musher and timing of such access will be communicated at that time.
- Media may not share or distribute media credentials to others not approved by ITC. Doing so will cause your credential to be revoked.

Need assistance in applying for credentials? Contact Bri Kelly with Thompson & Co. Public Relations, by email at media@iditarod.com, or by phone at 907-376-5155 ext. 106 or 907-903-9350.

MEDIA FAQ

Can I use Iditarod logo, videos or pictures from the website? No, unless specific approval is authorized by the Iditarod Trail Committee (ITC). Please note that this will most likely require a license agreement and fee for defined use. Insider footage is available for sale and cost is determined by how much footage is needed. For information on purchase or license of items on the Iditarod website, please email shooley@iditarod.com.

Do credentialed media receive access to the Iditarod Insider for free? In the media room at the Iditarod Race Headquarters in The Lakefront Anchorage, we have equipment available for media use which has the Insider Video on demand and Insider GPS Tracker available free of charge. Otherwise, you may purchase an Iditarod Insider subscription.

Can I attend the banquet for free? Media wanting to attend the banquet can do so for free for news purposes only, provided they stand and do not eat. Media often choose to purchase a ticket, as the event is more than four hours long. Banquet tickets are available for $82.00 and can be purchased through the online store or by calling 907-376-5155 ext. 103. This is a fun event where the mushers draw for starting order from a mukluk on stage at the Dena'ina Center in Anchorage. The banquet is an opportunity to meet mushers and visit with fans from all over the world. Please understand that mushers are seated with their own sponsors and special guests, so be respectful of their time.

Is there a media center with free Wi-Fi access? Iditarod Race Headquarters at The Lakefront Anchorage offers Wi-Fi for guests staying there. Additionally, the media room located in the The Lakefront Anchorage has designated equipment for media with Wi-Fi access. You must show your media credentials to use.

Is Iditarod interested in purchasing my photos? We do not purchase photos. The ITC has an agreement with Jeff Schultz who is the Iditarod's official photographer. You may contact him by email at Jeff@Schultzphoto.com or by phone at 907-279-2797.

Can I call the mushers? Will Iditarod give me their phone numbers? First, refer to each musher's bio.

You will find that they contain valuable information about the mushers and their kennels. Most bios also have a website listed for contact information. We are only able to provide additional contact information for those mushers who have indicated they want this information distributed. The best time to reach these mushers is usually prior to the start of the Iditarod.

How many mushers have completed the Iditarod? As of the finish of the 2015 Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, 797 mushers have completed the race.

Does the Iditarod race route change? Yes, in odd years the race follows the southern route. In even years the race follows the northern route.

What is the length of the race? In 2012, ITC published trail mileage using data gleaned from GPS mileage (southern route = 998 miles, northern route = 975 miles) calculations. While this data gets us close to the actual mileage, it is not exact as the units do not include a sufficient number of data points to account for all full twists, turns and elevation changes in the trail. Also, we know that the trail is not the same distance as it may be “set” or “broken” and “marked” somewhat differently in certain areas from year to year. Because of these factors, we often continue to use the symbolic figure of 1,049 miles, a number first used in the very early years of the Iditarod: 1,000 miles of trail and 49 to identify Alaska as the 49th state.

Permanent changes to the start – running only from downtown Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip instead of to Eagle River – and the change of the restart location from Wasilla to Willow – loss of mileage from Wasilla-Knik-Yentna River runs – has eliminated approximately 35 miles from the race.

IDITAROD FACTS

- The Iditarod starts in downtown Anchorage, Alaska, on Saturday, March 5 at 10 a.m.
- The Iditarod restarts in Willow, Alaska, on Sunday, March 6 at 2 p.m.
- As of December 16, 86 mushers signed up for the 2016 Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, including 69 veterans and 17 rookies. Entrants hail from nine states – Alaska, Idaho, Illinois, Oklahoma, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New York and Wyoming – and from four countries – United States, Canada, Norway and Sweden. The record number of mushers starting the race was 96 in 2008.
- The Iditarod traditionally pays the highest purse in sled dog racing. The 2015 purse was $700,100.00, distributed between the top 30 finishers with $1,049.00 paid to each additional finisher for a total of $737,864.00.
- The teams average 16 dogs, which means over 1,000 dogs will leave the starting line in 2016. Each musher can start with a maximum of 16 dogs down to a minimum of 12 dogs, and can finish with as few as six dogs.
- Seven Iditarod champions will be attempting to regain the title. Many of the past champions from other long distance races are also racing including Yukon Quest champions, Kusko 300 champions and Beargrease champions. The champions are J Lance Mackey, Jeff King, Martin Buser, Dallas Seavey, Mitch Seavey, Robert Sorlie and John Baker.
- The race crosses two mountain ranges, including North America's largest mountain range, the Alaska Range, and runs along the Yukon River and over the frozen Norton Sound.
- The route alternates every year. The southern route, runs from Ophir thru Iditarod, Shageluk, Anvik, Grayling, Eagle Island, Kaltag, Unalakleet, Shaktoolik, Koyuk, Elim, *Golovin, White Mountain, and Safety before ending in Nome. *NOTE: Golovin is not a checkpoint, but the race goes through this village. ITC appreciates the village's support and willingness to help the Iditarod.
- The northern route runs from Ophir through Cripple, Ruby, Galena, Nulato, Unalakleet, Shaktoolik, Koyuk, Elim, *Golovin, White Mountain, and Safety before ending in Nome. *NOTE: Golovin is not a checkpoint, but the race goes through this village. ITC appreciates the village's support and willingness to help the Iditarod.
- There are 24 checkpoints on the northern route, including Anchorage and Nome, three of which are uninhabited during the rest of the year.
- There are 19 checkpoints on the southern route, including Anchorage and Nome, three of which are uninhabited during the rest of the year.
- Seven teams signed up for the 2016 Iditarod that also signed up for the 2016 Yukon Quest – Rob Cooke, Allen Moore, Hugh Neff, Brent Sass, Cody Strathe, Paige Drobny and Scott Janssen.

- Volunteers are an integral part of the Iditarod. Currently there are over 1,000 volunteers registered. This number does not include those who volunteer in communities along the trail or the locals in Nome. The number of volunteers will continue to grow over the weeks to come and by the end of Iditarod 2016 there will be over 1,500 volunteers involved in some way or another.
- In 2016 there are a total of 52 veterinarians – three for dropped dogs in Anchorage, two for dropped dogs in both McGrath and Unalakleet, with 42 veterinarians dispersed along the trail and three consultants.
- There have been 797 finishers, which include 13 rookies, for a grand total of 2,087 to cross the finish line as of 2015. Musher's hailing from 23 states, five continents – North America, South America, Europe, Asia and Australia – and 22 foreign countries – Argentina, Austria, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, Russia, Serbia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom – have finished the Iditarod since 1973, including 126 women.
- Two generations of Busers and Seaveys, are running again this year as well as the Berington twins and the Mackey brothers.
- Musher's can be shy about talking about themselves; however, they will usually talk your ear off about their dogs.
- Checkpoints are staffed by volunteers who range from locals to visitors who have traveled hundreds of miles to Alaska. Volunteers may provide interesting stories about their communities and/or volunteer work. Some volunteers are actually on their vacation, and return year after year to volunteer. Ask them how long they have been a volunteer and you will be surprised to find that many have more than 20 years of experience.
- The first Iditarod race began on March 3, 1973 with 34 teams; 22 teams finished 32 days later.
- The slowest winning time of 20 days, 15 hours, two minutes and seven seconds was recorded in 1974 by Carl Huntington. The fastest winning time was recorded in 2014 race by Dallas Seavey with eight days, 13 hours, four minutes and 19 seconds, breaking John Baker's 2011 record of eight days, 18 hours, 46 minutes and 39 seconds.
- The closest finish was in 1978 when Dick Mackey beat Rick Swenson by one second, finishing in 14 days, 18 hours, 52 minutes and 24 seconds.
- The most finishers in one year occurred in 2008 when 78 teams crossed the finish line.
- Rick Swenson is the only five-time winner, the only musher to win in three decades, and only musher to complete 35 of 43 Iditarod's.
- Susan Butcher, Martin Buser, Doug Swingley, Jeff King and Lance Mackey have each won four Iditarod championships. Mackey is the only musher to have won four consecutive races with Butcher and Swingley both winning three consecutive races.

- Dick Mackey, Rick Mackey and Lance Mackey (father and two sons) have won the Iditarod. All three won wearing bib number 13 in their sixth race. Rick Mackey won the race in 1983 to become the first son of an Iditarod champion to match his father's accomplishment. Emmitt Peters was also wearing bib number 13 when he won in 1975.
- Lance Mackey is the first four-time Iditarod Champion to win all four races consecutively in 2007, 2008, 2009, and 2010. He also won the Yukon Quest in 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008, making him the first musher to win both of Alaska's premier long distance races back to back in 2007 and 2008 within weeks of each other.
- Four-time winner, Susan Butcher, claimed Iditarod victories in 1986, 1987, 1988, and again in 1990. Doug Swingley became the second four-time winner in 2001. His victories were in 1995, 1999, 2000 and 2001. Butcher and Swingley have the distinction of being the only Iditarod champions who have three consecutive victories.
- The youngest musher to ever compete in the Iditarod was Dallas Seavey in 2005 when he turned 18 on March 4, 2005. He was also the youngest winner in 2012.
- The oldest musher to ever compete is Colonel Norman D. Vaughan who last competed in 1992 at the age of 86.
- The Iditarod traditionally pays the highest purse in sled dog racing.
- On the trail, dogs need about 10,000 calories daily. How that is attained depends on their feeding program, which varies from kennel to kennel.
- The core diet is a premium kibble, specifically designed to have much higher levels of protein and fat than regular commercial pet food. Additional fat supplements (saturated or unsaturated, i.e., animal or plant sources) are needed to attain the 10,000-calorie level. Meats and fish are used to enhance palatability and/or as snacks. Of course, the more fat that is in the meat, the less pure fat supplement needed.
- There has been a huge amount of research into the topic of dog food. Authors include Grandjean (Royal Canin), Reynolds (Purina) and Reinhart (Iams). Knowledge gained by research into the nutritional needs of the sled dog has led to significant improvements in pet food formulations.

IDITAROD HISTORY

WHAT DOES THE WORD “IDITAROD” MEAN?

The following is from an article in the Anchorage Times following the 1973 Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, written by Gordon Fowler, Times Sports writer:

“Iditarod means clear water and was named by the Shageluk Indians for the Iditarod River.”

“The word comes from the Ingalik Indian word, Halditarod, which was the name for the river on which the town was built. It means distant place.”

And this one comes from James Kasri, assistant professor at the University of Alaska Native Language Center in 1979:

“The name Iditarod came from an Ingalik and Holikachuk word Hidehod for the Iditarod River. This name means distant or distant place. This word is still known by elders in the villages of Shageluk, Anvik, Grayling and Holy Cross.”

HISTORY OF THE “WIDOW’S LAMP”

During the days of Alaska sled dog freighting and mail carrying, dog drivers relied on a series of roadhouses between their village destinations. Since these mushers ventured out in most all kinds of weather, for safety reasons they founded the idea that pilots rely on, known today as the flight plan. Word was relayed ahead that a musher and team were on the trail, and a kerosene lamp was lit and hung outside the roadhouse. It not only helped the dog driver find his destination at night, but more importantly, it signified that a team or teams were somewhere out on the trail. The lamp was not extinguished until the musher safely reached his destination.

In keeping with that tradition, the Iditarod Trail Committee will light a “widow’s Lamp” at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 5, 2016, in Nome, the trail’s end. This lamp, which will be attached to the Burl Arch, or the official finish line, will remain lit as long as there are mushers still on the trail competing in this year’s race. When the last musher crosses the finish line, officials will extinguish the “Widow’s Lamp” signifying the official end of the 2016 Iditarod.

So often the media tend to think of the race being over once the “winner” crosses the finish line, yet the public still wants to follow the progress of the remaining mushers on the trail. We hope you will find this often overlooked part of the race worthy of your attention.

HISTORY OF THE “RED LANTERN”

Often, the “red lantern” is confused with the “widow’s lamp.” They are not the same. An article written several years ago in Alaska magazine states that the first red lantern was awarded in the 1953 Fur Rendezvous Race. According to Alaska magazine, “Awarding a red lantern for the last place finisher in a sled dog race has become an Alaskan tradition. It started as a joke and has become a symbol of stick-to-itiveness in the mushing world.” Earl Norris said, “The idea was that the last fellow was so far behind, he needed to light his way home.” In this tradition, Iditarod Trail Committee awards a red lantern to the last musher off the trail.

1925 SERUM RUN TO NOME

The Serum Run ended in Nome on Feb. 2, 1925, when Gunner Kaasen drove his tired dog team down an almost deserted First Avenue.

At stake were the lives of countless Nome children who had been exposed to the dreadful disease, diphtheria. Kaasen was one of the 20 drivers who took part in the record 674-mile relay race from Nenana to Nome. He delivered 300,000 units of antitoxin serum to Dr. Curtis Welch. The serum arrived in Nome in just one week from Anchorage and more than 127 hours from Nenana.

It was on Jan. 21, 1925 that Dr. Welch first diagnosed the diphtheria outbreak in Nome, and immediately sent telegraph messages to Fairbanks, Anchorage, Seward and Juneau asking for help. The only serum in Alaska was found in Anchorage, where Dr. J.B. Beeson had 300,000 units at the Alaska Railroad Hospital. The problem was, it needed to get it to Nome in the shortest amount of time possible.

The only two planes available were in Fairbanks and had been dismantled and stored for the winter. A pair of pilots offered to attempt the flight if the planes could be made ready, but it was left to Alaska's governor to decide. Many thought dog teams were the only reliable answer.

In Juneau, Governor Scott C. Bone decided on dog teams. He ordered an additional supply of antitoxin from Seattle. Then he called on the Northern Commercial Company, the largest organization in the Yukon River area, to arrange for relay teams. Men of the Army Signal Corps, at their scattered telegraph stations, also assisted.

In Nome, Dr. Welch and the mayor, George Maynard discussed ways to get the serum to Nome. They suggested sending the serum to Nenana by rail and then sending a team to the rail line, or asking a fast team to start the antitoxin down the Tanana and Yukon Rivers and have a team from Nome meet it about half way.

In Anchorage, Dr. Beeson packed the serum in a cylinder, which he wrapped in an insulating quilt. The whole parcel was then tied up in canvas for further protection. The parcel left Anchorage by train on Monday, Jan. 26, in the charge of conductor Frank Knight of the Alaska Railroad. It was at 11 p.m. on Tuesday that the train reached Nenana and Knight turned over the parcel to the first driver, William "Wild Bill" Shannon.

Shannon carried the serum 52 miles to Tolovana, where he handed it over to Dan Green. Green carried it 31 miles to Manley and handed it over to Johnny Folger. Folger went the 28 miles to Fish Lake. Sam Joseph picked it up there and carried it 26 miles to Tanana. Titus Nikoli carried it 34 miles to Kallands and Dave Corning carried it 24 miles to Nine Mile. Edgar Kallands picked it up at Nine Mile and went 30 miles to Kokrines and Harry Pitka carried it another 30 miles to Ruby. Billy McCarty carried it 28 miles to Whiskey Creek and turned it over to Edgar Nollner, who carried it 24 miles to Galena. George Nollner carried it from Galena to Bishop Mountain 18 miles. Charlie Evans went the 30 miles to Nulato and Tommy Patsy went the next 36 miles to Kaltag. At Kaltag, Jackscrew picked it up and took it 40 miles to Old Woman. Victor Anagick carried it 34 miles to Unalakleet and Myles Gonangnan carried it 40 miles to Shaktoolik. Henry Ivanoff started from Shaktoolik to Golovin with the serum.

Leonhard Seppala left Nome intending to rest at Nulato and return with the serum. But Seppala met Ivanoff outside of Shaktoolik where he took the serum and turned around, heading back for Nome. He carried the serum back over Norton Sound with the thermometer 30 degrees below zero. Seppala had to face into a merciless gale and in the darkness retraced his route across the uncertain ice. When Seppala turned the serum over to Charlie Olson in Golovin, after carrying it 91 miles, he had traveled a total of 260 miles. Olson turned the serum over to Gunnar Kaasen at Bluff. Kaasen took it the remaining 53 miles to Nome.

Balto, Kaasen's lead dog, owned by Seppala was memorialized with a statue in Central Park in New York City. Seppala always felt that his lead dog, Togo, didn't get enough recognition for his 260-mile effort. After Togo died, Seppala had him custom mounted and he is now on display at Iditarod headquarters in Wasilla. Balto is on display in Cleveland at the Museum of Natural History.

IDITAROD RACE HEADQUARTERS CONTACT INFORMATION

The Iditarod Trail Committee operates its primary race headquarters in Anchorage at the The Lakefront Anchorage Hotel, 4800 Spenard Road. Another headquarters operates in Nome to make accurate information available at the end of the race. You are invited to drop in to either headquarter location for the latest race information and to purchase Iditarod memorabilia. Visit www.iditarod.com.

JR. IDITAROD HISTORY

In order to enter the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, one must be 18 years old. In 1977, a number of younger mushers wanted to mush the Iditarod Trail. A group of these young people got together and organized the first Iditarod for junior mushers. This race, run annually, is now known as the Jr. Iditarod. Those early organizers were Karl Clauson, Kenny Pugh, Clarence Shockley and Eric Beeman.

The Jr. Iditarod trail is about 160 miles long. Mushers travel the 80 miles from Wasilla to the Yentna Station Roadhouse on the Yentna River over the historic Iditarod Trail. They overnight at Yentna, where race rules require that they stay with their dogs and care for them just as the Iditarod mushers in the adult Iditarod do. The next day, they return to Willow for the finish.

When a musher turns 14, he/she is eligible to compete in the Jr. Iditarod. These young people often have their own teams and are totally responsible for training them. According to a parent of one of the early mushers, the Jr. Iditarod is a “race founded with the idea of giving young mushers a choice between sprint and distance mushing and to help train young mushers to run the much longer race, the ‘grand daddy’ of all long distance races: the Iditarod.”

Many of the junior mushers have gone on to compete in the Iditarod. Ramey Smyth, Cim Smyth, Ray Redington, Jr., Dallas Seavey, Cain Carter and Lance Mackey are Jr. Iditarod alumni. Karl Clauson, Ellie Claus, Cali King, Rome Gilman, Clarence Shockley, Laird Barron, Kimarie Hanson, Caleb Banse, Andy Willis, Tony Willis, Andy Moderow, Tyrell Seavey, Daniel Seavey and Simon Kinneen are a few other former juniors who have gone on to race to Nome.

While most of the Jr. Iditarod participants have been from Alaska, in previous years young mushers have made the trip from Minnesota, Montana, Spain and Canada to compete in the Jr. Iditarod. The Jr. Iditarod welcomes mushers from all over.

There are no monetary prizes in the Jr. Iditarod; however, scholarships are awarded to the top five finishers and the winners of the Humanitarian and Sportsmanship awards, by Jr. Iditarod sponsor, Lynden.

In October of 1987, a formal agreement was signed, officially making the Jr. Iditarod part of the Iditarod Trail Committee, Inc. The 2016 Jr. Iditarod begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 27 on Knik Lake, Mile 13, Knik Goose Bay Road, Wasilla.

LAURA WRIGHT – 2016 IDITAROD TEACHER ON THE TRAIL™

Laura is a second-grade teacher at Eanes Elementary School in Austin, Texas. Laura incorporates Iditarod-themed lessons into all areas of her curriculum including math, art and science, with a strong technology piece that allows students to share their learning with others.

Reflecting back on her 20 years as a public school teacher, Laura remembers leaving the University of Texas eager to change the world and inspire students to care passionately about the world they live in. She began her career working with special education students in a school where she did not have access to textbooks or even a chalkboard. Teaching in such a difficult situation and with limited resources, she shared her own passions with her students; a love of nature by visiting nearby caves or performing plays and reading adapted classic literature such as "The Three Musketeers." Laura soon realized that every student in every classroom had the same desire; to be inspired about what they are being asked to learn. During her last year at Campbell Elementary School, she was awarded a $20,000 grant to develop a space called "Kid City". Working with the University of Texas School of Design, real-world buildings resembling a city were built to encourage real-world math skills in a simulated city environment.

At her current school, Eanes Elementary, Laura embraced Project-based Learning and was asked to pilot 1:1 technology for all the EISD elementary schools. She has presented locally and nationally at teacher conferences, sharing the tools and ideas she has learned to be successful in the classroom. What inspires her now is finding ways to give her students opportunities to share their work and passion with others nationally and globally.

Laura believes in the power of volunteering. For the past 25 years, Laura has been a passionate volunteer in the Austin community. It is important to Laura that all of her students understand that even a child can make a difference, no matter how small in their city, town or state. Laura's students can expect to donate cat and dog food for the local animal shelter at the annual holiday party or raise money for bat conservation in science. It is an expected and important part of her teaching.

As an educator, Laura is involved in many district committees, which allow her to share and collaborate with other educators in many ways. Her entire school has been involved in Iditarod activities this school year and in past years. Eanes Elementary and district administration have shown support of Iditarod-based education as a tool of content driven instruction by sending educators to Iditarod's Winter Teacher Conference for the past two years. This year, a team of educators from Laura's school will present at the conference, sharing the many STEM (plus art and other curriculum area) lessons and activities utilized to enrich classroom curriculum.

Laura applied to be Iditarod's Teacher on the Trail™ because she believes more teachers and students should be a part of this special Iditarod learning experience. She also believes her years of passionate, creative teaching, advanced technology skills, and leadership abilities help her connect 'The Last Great Race on Earth®' to more classrooms nationwide and globally.

Laura says, "bringing the Iditarod into the classroom ensures that students will not only have strong content mastery, but also important 21st century skills including the "Four Cs": critical thinking, communication, collaboration and creativity."

Laura is the 18th educator to gain the title of Iditarod Teacher on the Trail™. The program was created in 1998 by Finney, Andrea Aufder Hyde, who served as the first Teacher on the Trail™ in 1999. Following in Finney's 'boot tracks' along the Historic Iditarod Trail, Laura has embraced the school year by providing rigorous and highly engaging lessons and activities for students in her classroom and around the world.

JOANNE POTTS – 2016 IDITAROD HONORARY MUSER

The Iditarod Trail Committee has selected Joanne Potts to be the Honorary Musher for Iditarod XLIV. Her association with Iditarod began in 1975 when a neighbor asked if she'd like to volunteer for the race -- being fairly new to Alaska at the time, Joanne didn't even know what Iditarod was. Over the past 40 years, Potts has worn many hats in the Iditarod organization. In 1982 she joined the Iditarod staff as Race Coordinator. Today her official title is Assistant to the Race Director.

For the Ceremonial Start of the 2016 Iditarod, Joanne will see the race from a very different perspective. Instead of handing out bibs, directing traffic, parking mushers, assigning volunteers, assisting VIPs or answering questions like usual, Joanne will experience the ceremonial start from the perspective of an IditaRider. Wearing bib #1 and riding in the 2016 Junior Iditarod Champion's sled, she will lead the mushers down 4th Avenue on March 5. The Iditarod Trail

Committee, past and present mushers, friends, family, race fans and volunteers recognize and thank Joanne for more than 40 years of service to the Iditarod and for everything she has done to help make the Iditarod what it is today.

Joanne was born in 1940 and grew up in Richmond, Virginia. She has been married to her husband Art for more than 50 years. Their two children, Valerie and Jim, were born in Hydaburg, Alaska while Art was serving as the Presbyterian minister.

Joanne's appointment as Honorary Musher is recognition that Aliy Zirkle says, "has been a long time coming. Joanne has been an integral part of Iditarod for longer than most of us can remember. When any musher has a question, the answer is always - ASK JOANNE. Joanne has no favorites and she cares about everyone. She will help the most disorganized musher (which face it... most of us are) and not think ill of us. From the bottom of our hearts, all of us thank her for everything she has put into the race and into the mushers."

Answering phones a couple nights a week at race headquarters in Anchorage was Joanne's first job as a volunteer -- well before search engines and the Internet was the means of finding information. Standings for the top 10 mushers were recorded on answering machines. Folks could call anytime and hear the recordings. Those calling with questions or inquiries about a back-of-the-pack musher needed to talk to someone like Joanne in the phone room. The next couple of years she manned a bare-bones satellite race headquarters in Eagle River. She posted standings on a chalkboard for interested locals. Potts also spent time in the Iditarod booth at the state fair selling merchandise.

After three years of getting her feet wet, Joanne took on the job of running race headquarters in Anchorage. She was substitute teaching at the time but refused jobs during March to volunteer for the Iditarod. Turning down a paying job to volunteer? It's sounding like she's pretty hooked on the race.

In 1982 the Potts family moved from Eagle River to Wasilla and Joanne staffed the office at the newly established Iditarod Headquarters above Teeland's Store. Before starting the new position, she told them she would need to be home with her children during the summer. When summer rolled around, there was no one to take over so Joanne stayed on.

In August of 1982, over the objection of race founder Joe Redington Sr., Joanne was hired as the Race Coordinator. One hot day in August, Redington trekked upstairs to the office and found Joanne sitting with her feet propped on the desk. Joanne says, "it was hotter than blazes and nobody was around until Joe walked in and I was just trying to stay cool." Redington thought it was completely unbecoming of her to have her feet on the desk; after all it was the Iditarod office. Joe told the Iditarod Board they needed to find somebody “classier” for the job of Race Coordinator. Joe quickly came to respect Joanne for her organization skills, tireless energy, people skills and devotion to the race.

Official Iditarod Photographer, Jeff Schultz, recently said, “I photographed my first race in 1981 and Joanne was there and, as always, was happy to help a newbie. I believe Joanne has been and is the best public relations person for Iditarod it could ever have had. Not in the sense of sending out press releases, talking to the press and such, but she has helped countless mushers, sponsors, volunteers and staff in getting answers and/or results for anything they need. She has helped the Iditarod name and race by going the extra mile in everything she does for Iditarod including doing her best to see that people are satisfied. Over the 40 years she’s served Iditarod, she’s done tons to perpetuate the race.”

Joanne put her PR skills to use on her first big assignment as the race coordinator. She was sent to Nome to smooth some ruffled feathers from the previous race. In Nome, she met and talked to a lot of people. Joanne assured the people of Nome that she was there only as a resource and that the Iditarod didn’t want to control what went on in Nome. A Nome resident agreed to coordinate activities for the finish and appoint people to do things. Her visit improved relations immensely.

Barb Redington said, “Joanne is so personable and that’s what endears her to everyone. She really cares. It’s great to honor Joanne in this way so everyone has the opportunity to say thank you and we appreciate you and everything you’ve done.” Raymie Redington, son of race founder Joe Redington Sr., said, “it’s real good they’ve chosen to honor Joanne. She deserves it.”

Not only does Joanne care for the adult mushers; she’s there for the Junior Iditarod mushers as well. She’s watched many of those kids grow up from cradle to sled. Once they reach the age of 14, they can compete in the Junior Iditarod and then many continue mushing and run the Iditarod. Joanne delights in seeing the kids come full circle. She’s served on the Junior Iditarod Board of Directors, currently acts as the secretary, and is the voice of Iditarod for the Junior Iditarod organization. Potts served as the starter/timer at Yentna Station, the halfway point of the junior race, for many years. She recorded the teams’ arrival times at the rest stop, calculated their layover and differential and gave them the count down to leave for the finish. Their departure might be at 3:00 or 4:00 in the morning and it might be 30 degrees below, but she was out there to send them to the finish with a smile, wishes of good luck and pride in their accomplishments.

When mushers have questions, Joanne is their primary contact. She says, “I feel like they’re my kids and I take care of them the best I can.” Cindy Abbott seconds that, “my first contact with Joanne was three days after the finish of the 2011 race. Even though she was busy working on thousands of post-race duties, she took the call from the crazy California woman who knew very little about mushing or Alaska but wanted to run the Iditarod. Over the years, Joanne and I became friends,” says Abbott. “I could go to her for advice and guidance on any issue. No matter how busy she was, Joanne always responded quickly in her positive, supportive and forthright manner. She’s one of the most kind, caring and hardworking people I’ve ever known. Her dedication knows no limit - she goes to great lengths to help with whatever needs to be done.”

At the burlled arch in Nome, Potts congratulates the finishers, not just some of them but all of them. It makes no difference if it’s 3:00 PM or 3:00 AM, if it’s the champion or the Red Lantern or somebody in between. Joanne is there. She greets every finisher, rookie or veteran, like they were her own children, sharing their joy and pride in what they’ve accomplished.

“Joanne missed my finish in 2015,” says Abbott. “My dream of finishing Iditarod came true because Joanne had taken my call. I was the Red Lantern musher but it felt as if I were the winner. I was excited to see Joanne, but where was she? Come to find out, Joanne had slipped on some ice and was on her way to the hospital but she sent someone to give me a hug and congratulations for her. Joanne Potts is the embodiment of The Last Great Race on Earth®.” Before heading back to California after her race, Abbott collected her congratulatory hug from a mended Joanne.

In 2013, Joanne was the first Iditarod staff member to be inducted in the Anchorage Dispatch News Iditarod Hall of Fame. The announcement mentions Joanne's super powers. No question about it, Potts does seem to have superhuman qualities along with the perceived ability to somehow be in two places at once. When it comes to Iditarod facts and information or people's names, just think of her brain as a storage device with a mega Terabyte capacity, then consider her exceptional ability to multi-task that is her standard operating mode every day of the year, especially at race time.

If you're at an Iditarod function and somebody calls out, "SUPERWOMAN," they're asking for Joanne, who can easily be considered the female version of Clark Kent. Jeff Schultz calls her the 'Iditarod Answer Woman' because "If you have an Iditarod-related question, she can answer it or she'll find out and get back to you sooner rather than later. She seems tireless in her energy to be involved in it all – setting up meetings, giving advice to rookies, helping a musher with paperwork, being at all the pre-race functions, fetching donuts or pizza and selling raffle tickets at the banquets in Anchorage and Nome."

Over her lengthy Iditarod career, Potts has enough stories to create a book that would easily be one of the 10 largest books ever published. A story from the 1988 race would certainly be included. Before departing Anchorage for the burlled arch in Nome via Alaska Airlines, Joanne was handed a box that contained a unique Iditarod handgun and a solid gold Iditarod belt buckle. The content of the box was valued at $5,000. Joanne was told, "deliver this to Rosemary Phillips (Iditarod Executive Director) and don't let it out of your sight." Joanne took the charge very seriously and put the box in her carry-on bag.

Anchorage airport security took their job just as seriously. When the x-ray of her carry-on bag revealed the contents, a small army of security officers quickly surrounded Joanne and escorted her to a room for questioning. Authorities advised Joanne that carrying a gun onto an aircraft could result in a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison. The FAA and the FBI were alerted. The next few hours were tense and emotional until the Vice President of Alaska Air came to the rescue. Finally, after a lot of explaining and negotiation, the pilot was put in charge of the handgun and belt buckle and Potts was allowed to fly. As Joanne deplaned in Nome, surely with more gray hair than when she began the day, the pilot handed her the precious package. She then delivered it to Phillips as instructed.

Going the extra mile, getting things done and doing it with a smile is what Joanne is known for. Musher Becca Moore says, "our family (Becca and husband, Ramey Smyth) has had a team in the race since 2005. I have always admired Joanne's dedication, hard work and can-do attitude. While we're deep into training and focused on the dogs, Joanne keeps us up-to-date and informed on things we need to know. She is there at sign-up, she's at the start and she'll be at the finish line."

Joanne does so much more than what the assistant to the race director's job description requires. Moore continues, "she is genuinely concerned for mushers and their families from sharing in the joys of the birth of a baby to concern and support during a family hardship and all things in between. When we stop at Iditarod Headquarters, the kids and I love to go into the office to say hi to Joanne. She has photos of the mushers' children pinned up at her desk. She has welcomed both of our children to the mushing family with handmade blankets. Once, before the race utilized GPS to track the mushers, I was worried about Ramey spending 18 hours in Rohn. I called Joanne. She let me know he was fine; it was the race standings that hadn't been updated. Planning for and preparing for Iditarod is year-round both in the office and in the kennels. Joanne has always been available, summer and winter, always going the extra mile."

Her current job title is assistant to the race director, but Joanne is pretty much the Iditarod Jack of all Trades. Potts loves working for the race. Over the years, she's gotten to know the mushers and their families and has talked to and met a lot of people from around the world. Joanne considers all of those contacts to be the best part of her job. No two races are the same and there's no such thing as a routine day for the Superwoman of the Iditarod. Congratulations Joanne and thank you.

IDITAROD MUSER AND BIB AUCTIONS

IDITARIDER MUSER AUCTION – ONE OF A KIND EXPERIENCE

Not only is the IditaRider Musher Auction one of the largest fundraisers for the Iditarod, but it is definitely one of the most adventurous! The IditaRider Musher Auction, which opens on Dec. 1 each year, offers the opportunity for fans to bid to ride in a sled as it leaves the Start Line in downtown Anchorage on Saturday. Riders from all over the world have been in sleds as well as famous people such as comedian Joan Rivers, actress Susan Lucci, astronaut Bernard Harris, Jr., Olympic Gold Medalist skater Dorothy Hamil and many more. The ride goes 11 miles along some of Anchorage's beautiful trails through parks and snow-covered woods and ends at the BLM Science Center. Being an IditaRider is the next best thing to being on the runners of a sled. Bidding opens at $500. The bids are generally over $1,300 with many sleds selling for the maximum – $7,500 per sled. The auction closes on the third Friday in January each year. Remember: Bid! Win! Ride!

2016 MUSER BIB AUCTION

After the race begins, an autographed bib worn by each musher from the start line goes on auction until the end of March. Bids start at $100. Take a chance and bid to win so you can own the bib of your favorite musher, a champion or a rookie of the year. This is a great way to have your own piece of the Iditarod history. Visit the auction site www.iditaroduction.com.

The Iditarod Trail Committee, Inc. is a 501(c) (3) nonprofit organization. Winning bids may use as a portion as a tax deduction. A contribution report is sent with the credit card receipt once the auction has closed.

CEREMONIAL START COORDINATOR'S MESSAGE TO MEDIA

ANCHORAGE START INFORMATION

Welcome to the Iditarod! This portion of your Media Guide includes a brief event time-line for Anchorage, and maps depicting 4th Avenue and the trail through Anchorage to the Bureau of Land Management complex.

There are four guidelines that concern Media at the Start:

1. It is imperative that members of the media not impede the activities of the mushers and dog teams, handlers, officials, or any other volunteer. The media is asked to make way for these people, as well as the teams, and to comply with security requests.
2. COLOR CODED MEDIA CREDENTIALS MUST BE VISIBLE AT ALL TIMES. Security will ask you to produce these credentials if they are not visibly displayed. Anyone who cannot produce and display the proper credentials will be asked to leave the Avenue. Members of the media who have questions or concerns regarding credentials may inquire with the Media Coordinator at the Iditarod Operations Motorhome.
3. BLUE ZONE (Official Media) - Priority positions for start line coverage will be reserved exclusively for Official Media (KTVA-TV, Ohana Media Group, Iditarod Insider Productions and other entities under contract with Iditarod. NO OTHER MEDIA WILL BE ALLOWED ACCESS TO THE AREA BETWEEN THE KTVA-TV CAMERA PLATFORM AND E STREET.
4. RED ZONE — (Non Official Media) - Other television stations, newspapers, production companies and their videographers and photographers) - People and Equipment will only be allowed BEHIND the snow berms between the start line and C Street. YOU MAY NOT position your equipment on, or lay on, the snow berms. The first 75 feet on the north side of 4th Avenue, running east from the start line, is off limits to any and all personnel, including media.
5. GOLD ZONE – All other credentialed media

The primary purpose and responsibility of ALL start volunteers is to provide for the safety and well-being of the mushers and their dogs. We ask simply that you respect their efforts.

We sincerely hope that you enjoy this year's race. Good luck with your stories, and if there is anything we can do to assist you please don't hesitate to call.

RESTART-WILLOW MAP

The restart will begin at 2 p.m. on Sunday, March 6, 2016.

The restart will be staged on Willow Lake located behind the Willow Community Center. From Willow Lake the mushers will cross Long Lake, Crystal Lake, and Vera Lake. Once they leave Vera Lake they will travel to the Susitna River and on to the Yentna River.

Media and fans traveling to Willow are encouraged to do as much carpooling as possible to avoid unnecessary congestion on the Parks Highway. Public Parking will be available at the Willow Airport at a cost of $10.00 per vehicle.

Note: As of 2012, the southern route distance is approximately 998 miles. In previous years the distance was always over 1,000 miles. Three things factor into this adjustment:

- The change in the ceremonial start (running from downtown Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip instead of Eagle River)
- The change of the restart location from Wasilla to Willow (loss of Wasilla-Knik-Yentna River runs)
- The actual year-to-year trail conditions can affect trail routing and the actually mileage will vary somewhat from year to year

“1,049 miles®” has been a symbolic figure from the inception of the race to signify the 1,000 miles or more of race trail and the number 49 depicts Alaska as the 49th state.

SOUTHERN ROUTE TRAIL DESCRIPTIONS

Pronunciation, Population and Facts of Interest

Anchorage (ang-ker-ij) – (ANC) Lat 61.12 Long 149.55

Population: 301,000 – Anchorage is Alaska's largest city with a full range of transportation and hotel accommodations. The race starts downtown on Fourth Avenue. Interesting side trips during March include Portage Glacier or downhill skiing at Mount Alyeska, both less than an hour drive south, or head north to Hatcher Pass for cross country skiing and to explore the remains of Independence Mine.

Willow (wil-oh) – Lat 61.45.25N Long 150.03.10W

Population: 2,156 – The restart takes place on Willow Lake at Parks Highway Mile Marker 70.

Yentna Station -- (YENT-na) -- (YENT) Lat 61.46 N Long 150.41W

Population: 8 – This checkpoint is at the home of the Dan and Jean Gabryzack family.

Skwentna (SKWENT-nuh) - (SKW) Lat 61.55 Long 151.11

Population: 30 – Located near the confluence of the Skwentna and Yentna Rivers. The checkpoint is located at Joe and Norma Delia's log house, also known as the Post Office. There is a store and limited lodging nearby.

Finger Lake -- (FL) Lat 61.59 Long 152.40

Population: 2 – In the heart of the snow country, here it is not uncommon to have 10 feet of snow on the ground. The checkpoint is at Winter Lake Lodge.

Rainy Pass -- (RP) Lat 62.10 Long 152.43

Population: 2 – This area represents the highest point on the Iditarod Trail as it passes over the majestic Alaska Range. Located on Puntilla Lake is Vern Humble's guiding operation. Known as Rainy Pass Lodge, it is closed down at this time of year. Iditarod uses one of their cabins for a checkpoint and another for mushers to rest in.

Rohn (RONE) -- (ROH) Lat 62.35 Long 153.21

Population: 0 – This area is tied with Rainy Pass as having the most spectacular scenery. The gateway to the interior, Rohn Roadhouse marks the transition point where the mushers start to venture into the flatlands of the interior, along with dropping temperatures. Situated near the confluence of the South Fork of the Kuskokwim and Tatina Rivers, the area served as one of the original Iditarod Trail Roadhouses for the dog teams carrying mail, etc. The actual roadhouse is gone, so the checkpoint is a cabin built in the 1930s. Note: most press mistakenly refer to this as Rohn River checkpoint, but there is no Rohn River. It's Rohn Roadhouse. Many mushers take their mandatory 24-hour layover here before heading across the bleak but treacherous Farewell Burn area. No facilities or lodging are available at Rohn.

Nikolai (NIK-o-lye) -- (NIK) Lat 63.02 Long 154.22

Population: 101 – This is the first of many Alaska Native villages along the Iditarod Trail. There is a village store at the far end of town across the airstrip and limited lodging is available through advance booking. The checkpoint is located in the Community Hall.

McGrath (muh-GRATH) -- (McG) Lat 62.57 Long 155.36

Population: 341 – Located near the confluence of the Kuskokwim and Takotna Rivers, this thriving community has two stores, a bar and a restaurant. It's the last chance to buy aviation gas, except for Galena, until you reach the coast at Unalakleet. Lodging is also available with advance booking.

Takotna (Ta-COT-na) -- (TAK) Lat 63.00 Long 156.04

Population: 49 – Situated on the banks of the Takotna River, this town has a store and restaurant. This is one of the smallest towns with one of the biggest welcomes.

Ophir (OH-fur) -- (OPH) Lat 63.08 Long 156.31

Population: 0 – Now a ghost town, it took its name in 1908 from a nearby placer creek, one of a dozen streams in Alaska to be named by Bible-reading prospectors, for the lost country of Ophir, the source of King Solomon's gold. Many items and artifacts still remain untouched. The checkpoint is at Dick and Audra Forsgren's cabin.

Iditarod (I-DIT-a-rod) - Lat 62.38 Long 155.05

Population: 0 – Now a ghost town, it was once a bustling community of over 10,000. GCI Dorothy G. Page Halfway Award is presented to the first musher to the checkpoint in addition to a trophy and $3,000 in gold nuggets.

Shageluk (SHAG-a-luck) - Lat 62.42 Long 159.24

Population 83 - Ingalik Indian name meaning “village of the dog people.” Checkpoint is in community hall. Adolph Hamilton resides here. He helped race organizers find the original trail to the town of Iditarod even though he had been over it once, as a small boy, with his father.

Anvik (AN-vick) - Lat 62.39 Long 160.11

Population: 79 – First checkpoint on the Yukon River. Checkpoint is in lodge minimum accommodations available. The Lakefront Anchorage First Musher to the Yukon Award, including a seven-course meal and $500 in $1 bills.

Grayling - Lat 62.55 Long 160.40

Population: 189 – Checkpoint is in the community center and is the last village until Kaltag, 122 miles up the trail on the Yukon River.

Eagle Island - Lat 63.39 Long 159.24

Population: 0 – Tent checkpoint on the Yukon River.

Kaltag -- (KAL-tag) -- (KAL) Lat 64.19 Long 158.45

Population: 205 – This town signals a brief respite from the driving winds as the trail from here leads overland through Kaltag Portage to the coast of Norton Sound where the winds take on new meaning. Kaltag is the home of Virginia Kalland, widow of Edgar Kalland who was one of the original mushers who helped carry lifesaving diphtheria serum along this trail 60 years ago. She also owns one of Kaltag's three stores. Note: The location for mushers' check-in is at Rich Burnham's house, but the official checkpoint and gathering spot is the community hall about a block away. Please don't treat the Burnham home as a checkpoint.

Unalakleet (YOU-na-la-kleet) -- (UNK) Lat 63.53 Long 160.42

Population: 692 – Situated on the coast of Norton Sound, just north of the Unalakleet River, this village is the largest community on the Iditarod Trail between Willow and Nome. Two well-stocked stores as well as two restaurants can be found here along with limited lodging by advance booking. The trail is now entering the gateway to the Bering Sea and from here on the mushers can expect sudden storms and an ample supply of wind. The checkpoint is in front of the A.C. store.

Shaktoolik (Shak-TOO-lick) -- (SHAK) Lat 64.20 Long 161.10

Population: 258 – One look down the street at the snowdrifts will tell you this is one of the windiest stretches of the trail. From here the trail continues overland for a short distance, and then leads the mushers out onto the ice of Norton Bay, one of the most treacherous segments of trail that the musher may have to contend with. The checkpoint is at the armory.

Koyuk (Koy-uk) -- (KOY) Lat 64.56 Long 161.10

Population: 347 – Once this checkpoint is reached, the mushers can breathe a sigh of relief as almost all of the rest of the trail is at least over land. The checkpoint is the City Rec Center.

Elim (EE-lim) -- (ELM) Lat 64.37 Long 162.15

Population: 332 – The checkpoint is at the fire hall (check at the store for directions). From here, the trail heads over the hills of the Kwiktalik Mountains inland a little ways to the next checkpoint on Golovin Bay. The checkpoint is at the fire hall, but ask at the village store.

Golovin (GULL-uh-vin) -- (GOL) Lat 64.32 Long 163.50

Population: 171 – Not an official checkpoint, but a community with a large welcome. Golovin has one store. From here the trail heads across Golovin Bay, then overland to the next checkpoint.

White Mountain --(WT MT) Lat 64.41 Long 163.24

Population: 199 – Just 77 miles from Nome, this village is located on the banks of the Fish River. It takes its name from that of a picturesque nearby mountain. Checkpoint is located in the community hall building up the hill from the store.

Safety -- (SAF) Lat 64.27 Long 164.49

Population: 0 – The last checkpoint before Nome, just 22 miles away. Here the mushers are on the coast of the Bering Sea and travel on the beach most of the way to Nome.

Nome -- (OME) Lat 64.30 Long 165.24

Population: 3,695 – The end of the Iditarod Trail! Prospectors established this Seward Peninsula city as Anvil City after adjacent Anvil Creek in 1898. A year later, gold was discovered in beach sand and it became a boomtown, home of 30,000 gold seekers. The city was renamed Nome in 1899 after a nearby point on Norton Sound, which got its name in 1853 when a British Navy cartographer misinterpreted a chart notation of "? Name" and recorded it as Nome. The gold rush atmosphere still abounds, especially when "Iditarod Fever" hits town with the entire community turning out to welcome the mushers and visitors alike to their community. Numerous stores, restaurants and bars line Nome's infamous "Front Street", but lodging is at a premium. If the Nugget Inn and Polaris Hotel are full, check with the Nome Convention and Visitors Bureau for the availability of bed and breakfast accommodations.

SOUTHERN ROUTE-DESCRIPTION OF THE IDITAROD TRAIL BETWEEN CHECKPOINTS

Between the Checkpoints

Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip.....11 miles

Ceremonial start of the Iditarod Trail that begins on Fourth Avenue in downtown Anchorage and runs through the snow covered streets and trails of Anchorage. Each musher participates and carries an Idita-Rider, a passenger who has successfully bid ($500-$7,500) to ride in the basket of a particular musher to the end of this 11-mile ceremonial start.

Willow to Yentna Station42 miles

The trail begins on Willow Lake, travels across frozen lakes and swamps before the trail winds through a birch forest before dropping onto the Big Susitna River via Corral Hill. Most of the trail is flat. Once the teams drop onto the Big Susitna River they travel via river to the Yentna Station Checkpoint, which is located on the Yentna River.

Yentna Station to Skwentna.....30 miles

The mushers run the Yentna all the way to the confluence with the Skwentna River and the town of Skwentna, three miles from the mouth. These slow moving glacial rivers normally provide very good trails. They are all from one fourth to more than a mile wide and freeze thick enough to provide a good trail until late into the winter. Hazards are sometimes plentiful with rough ice to manhandle a sled over and around. Overflow, water running on top of the ice, can be a very real problem in some conditions.

Skwentna to Finger Lake40 miles

From the Skwentna checkpoint the trail continues up the river for one mile and turns off on the left bank. It continues inland across Eight-Mile Swamp through spruce timber and cottonwoods to the Old Skwentna Roadhouse. The crossing is at a 45-degree angle to the river. The trail climbs up a creek drainage turning first right and then left into an open swamp, long and narrow, and through spruce forest for 2-2.5 miles to Shell Creek. Overflow and/or open water is often a problem. From Shell Creek the trail continues, crossing One Stone Lake. From there to Finger Lake are open swamps and thin stands of spruce and alder. The trail crosses to the north shore and the Finger Lake cabin. All grades are moderate or gentle with no hard climbs and no dense woods.

Finger Lake to Puntilla Lake (Rainy Pass Lodge)30 miles

At Finger Lake the trail drops sharply onto Red Lake leaving the lake at the northwest corner. It climbs steeply leaving the lake at the northwest corner. It climbs steeply up a small creek bed to the benches above Finger Lake. From here it is through swamps, spruce and alder forest to Happy River. The two miles before Happy River are through dense spruce. At Happy River there are three benches to descend with the first being the longest drop, known as the "Steps". A small drainage leads down to the level bench and the trail drops straight down this "V". From this bench the trail descends off the right end to the bench along the river. The last drop is onto the river itself. This section is one of the most hazardous on the trail and extreme caution must be exercised here. The trail will be well marked and the descents will have a straight lead-in. In 2012 the trail will be routed around the famous "Steps" due to a road that was created by a mineral exploration company. This trail re-routing is not yet a permanent change.

Once on the river itself, the trail turns left to the mount (200') and then right, going up the Skwentna River. Approximately 1/4 mile up the Skwentna is a draw coming down from the right and the trail goes up this draw. A ramp may have to be constructed because the bank has washed away leaving a cut bank four to eight feet high. Once into the draw, stay to the right side as the left side leads to a vertical wall 6' high and is impassable. The draw is only 125 - 150 yards long and once on top the trail continues northwest to Shirley Lake passing through spruce and cottonwood and rolling hills. No grades are steep or long. The steepest grade is up the draw from the Skwentna River. The trail exits Shirley Lake on the northwest side and continues through spruce and cottonwood to Round Mountain. There are some moderate but short grades and a couple of steep but short grades both up and down. At Round Mountain a side hill is encountered and brush is encroaching on the trail. From here to Puntilla Lake is a distance of three to four miles and is gentle terrain with open swamps and sparse timber.

Puntilla Lake to Rohn.....35 miles

Puntilla Lake (Rainy Pass Lodge) is 1835 feet above sea level and from here the trail climbs through Rainy Pass reaching 3160 feet above sea level. From the lodge the trail climbs a small hill and enters the valley. It runs on the north side of the ridge that separates the Indian Creek drainage from Happy River drainage. The trail gradually crosses to the right side of the valley and where Happy River forks three ways, follows Pass Creek (the right fork) into Rainy Pass itself. The climb this far is gentle but the terrain is barren with a few willow thickets and the snow is wind packed to ice and very rough. Once across Rainy Pass Lake (Puntilla Lake), the trail climbs to the summit and descends along Dalzell Creek. Dalzell Creek runs to the Tatina River and here the trail turns sharply left and continues five to six miles to the Rohn checkpoint.

Rohn to Nikolai75 miles

The trail leaves Rohn and crosses the South Fork of the Kuskokwim River and turns sharply left (inland) about 3/4 mile below the Rohn checkpoint. From here to Farewell Lake the trail crosses sharp hills with moderate and steep grades, both up and down. Some of the grades are up to 1/2 - 1 3/4 miles long. The trail is very narrow in places and in some of the denser stands of spruce is a tunnel. The worst area is the Tin Creek with a steep side hill drop to the canyon floor and a climb up the other side. This climb is to the right of the gorge (100-150 yards) and should be well marked. The trail from Tin Creek to Farewell Lake continues through spruce and alder. In the open areas the trail is but a rut when the snow is light. It crosses several "wallows" which are very rough. Approaching Farewell Lake the terrain levels out somewhat and crosses a small lake a couple of miles prior to dropping onto Farewell. This is bison (buffalo) country!

The trail leaves Farewell Lake at the northwest end of the lake and for the next 8-10 miles passes through dense spruce forest and across lakes. It then enters the old "Farewell Burn." In the summer of 1984, the B.L.M. cleared the trail through the Burn. It is 25 feet wide and was cleared to bare ground so there are no windfalls and it is a good trail. The terrain is rolling with short moderate grades. This trail segment is approximately 20 miles long and it then enters very large open swamps to the Salmon River. Trail markings are the only visual references for direction. At the Salmon River the trail turns to the right, crosses the Salmon River at the cabins and continues to Nikolai through spruce and alder stands and open swamps. It crosses the Kuskokwim River into Nikolai. The one danger area through the Burn is at Bear Creek, which has a history of being open. Bridges will be built, if needed, and the area will be well marked.

Nikolai to McGrath48 miles

From Nikolai, the trail runs west to McGrath. The terrain is mostly flat. The trail passes through open swamps, small stands of spruce and alder and runs on the river itself. There are no grades to consider. This section is well traveled and should present no problems unless deep fresh snow is encountered, at which time the trail is very soft. McGrath is a major staging area and many trails run out of town. The Iditarod will be well marked to prevent confusion.

McGrath to Takotna18 miles

The trail leaves McGrath at the east end of Runway Seven, the same place where it enters. Crossing the Kuskokwim River to the mouth of the Takotna River and turning west, the trail continues over Porcupine Ridge to Takotna. The terrain is gentle rolling hills with moderate grades and is mainly spruce timber with a few open areas. This is a well-traveled trail and should present no problems.

Takotna to Ophir23 miles

From Takotna the Iditarod Trail is the State Highway that runs to Ophir. Take the road to the right at the fork 1.5 miles out of Takotna. Normally there is no snow plowing on the Ophir fork of the highway; however, it is well traveled by dog teams and snow machines all winter. It is seven miles to the top of the grade and then runs down into the Innoko River Valley. Bridges and streams are identified with State of Alaska signs. The trail leaves the road occasionally to cross ridges and to avoid drifted areas. These departures should be well marked.

Ophir to Iditarod.....80 miles

Out of Ophir checkpoint the trail follows a cat trail along the Innoko River into the old town site, about a mile. It runs right down the airport runway and crosses the Innoko about a mile further along. You cross the river again at six miles out of the checkpoint. Large spruce, birch and cottonwood here a good camping spot. Immediately after crossing the Innoko, the cat trail forks -left to Iditarod. It will be well marked. A long up grade through black spruce to the Beaver Mountain Pass across a barren rocky, desolate area. Two small creeks cross this stretch offering the only meager cover available. The trail is heading in a West - Southwest direction. Six to eight miles after re-entering spruce cover; you pass Don's Cabin on the right side of the trail. You are 36 miles from Ophir. The trail crosses a small spruce covered ridge and crosses Windy Creek. The trail runs south on the East side of the Iditarod through open timber, swamps, and lakes into Iditarod. Some gentle rolling ridges are encountered. The checkpoint is on the west side of the large slough with old town on the left.

Iditarod to Shageluk55 miles

You leave Iditarod out of the west end of the slough and drop onto the river for about two miles north and then go up the left bank following a low ridge between two small streams climbing a gentle often moderate grade to nearly the top of a 1008-foot barren knob. This portion of trail is in an old burn; it will be marked with tripods, reflectors, and tape. It passes across ridge after ridge with gentle to occasionally steep grades. The Little Yentna crossing is the first stream of any size since Iditarod. You continue through swamp and scattered timber to the Big Yentna out of small drainages in a westerly direction. It crosses a few low ridges with gentle grades while changing drainages. Spruce covered hills are encountered as you drop into the lower Innoko River Valley at Shageluk.

Shageluk to Anvik25 miles

Leaving Shageluk, you drop onto the Innoko and go north about a mile. Depart the river on the left bank and proceed in a westerly direction across swamps and lake for 10 - 11 miles. The trail turns to a more southwesterly direction and passes through heavy timber, cottonwood, spruce, birch and lots of brush. It is nearly a tunnel in some spots. You come out on the Yukon and pass an island on your right.

Across the Yukon and 3/4 miles north is Anvik. It is on a small slough just off the river.

Anvik to Grayling18 miles

The trail goes north along the west shore of the Yukon out of Anvik for miles to Grayling.

Grayling to Eagle Island62 miles

Out of Grayling you travel north along the west shore of the Yukon. Occasionally the trail may run on an island sandbar to avoid thin river ice. Local conditions will control this. The Iditarod trail will have confirming marking just after intersections or turnoffs. It is located just inside a small stream on the west bank.

Eagle Island to Kaltag60 miles

Out of Eagle Island the trail continues to hug the west shore for about 23 miles and then crosses to some midstream islands and then to the east shore at 35-mile Slough. We follow the trapper's trail north on up the Yukon to Kaltag.

Kaltag to Unalakleet85 miles

From Kaltag, the trail exits from the northwest end of the runway. The next 15 miles run through spruce forest and open areas along the Kaltag River, climbing gently to the summit of the Portage. Continuing through similar terrain, it starts down the Unalakleet drainage to Old Woman Cabin at the base of Old Woman Mountain. This mountain is an excellent landmark. The trail continues past the mountain and runs along the left side of the Unalakleet drainage. The terrain is gentle rolling hills. Little or no vegetation can be seen along the trail until near Unalakleet. Approximately five miles out of town the trail hits the river. With the exception of a few short portages across horseshoe bends, the trail follows the river into Unalakleet. The last 32 miles from Old Woman Mountain is often windy and the snow is usually wind packed and crusty. In fact, the entire coast is often very windy.

Unalakleet to Shaktoolik40 miles

To Shaktoolik, the trail crosses several low ridges with mostly gentle and moderate grades. The vegetation is stunted spruce and willow thickets. Leaving Unalakleet, the trail turns northward and parallels the coast to Power, then turns inland, crossing behind Blueberry Point. It then drops back toward the coast at Egavik, a summer fish camp. A series of long low hills is crossed with grades being moderate to gentle but some are up to a mile long. The crest of the last ridge is about 17 miles from Shaktoolik and the village is visible from here. The next four to five miles are down a moderate to steep serpentine grade through willow thickets and stunted spruce. The turns are moderate but can be extremely slick. At the bottom, the trail follows the coastal dune on the landward side the last 12 miles to Shaktoolik. The trail from the bottom of the hill to the checkpoint runs over ice on the Shaktoolik River and is often rough. The village is on the left.

Shaktoolik to Koyuk50 miles

The trail from Shaktoolik bears north, crossing the peninsula. It runs on land for eight to nine miles then starts across Norton Bay at the mouth of Reindeer Cove. The terrain to this point is mostly gentle swells of the ground with no true grades. There is no vegetation. Approximately five miles onto the ice is Island Point and Little Mountain. It appears to be a large rock rising from the sea ice, but is in fact the head of a small peninsula. The trail passes a shelter cabin on the south side of Little Mountain. From here a compass bearing of 340 degrees leads into Koyuk. Marking on this segment of the trail usually consists of laths with reflective tape alternating with spruce boughs. Every mile will be marked. The ice is often rough.

Koyuk to Elim48 miles

When leaving Koyuk for Elim, the trail follows the coast, almost doubling back on itself. It runs southeast to Bald Head and Castle Rock where it turns westerly, following the coast to Moses Point. Moses Point is a spit that, with the coastline, forms Kwiniuk Inlet. The trail parallels the spit for five to six miles where it joins the mainland. It continues on the sea ice along the coast, passing the abandoned F.A.A. Station. From there to Elim two routes may be used. One continues along the ice to Elim; the other takes the road along the coast to Elim, which is six-to-eight miles away.

Elim to Golovin (not an official checkpoint, but an integral part of the race)28 miles

The trail leaves Elim, following the ice along the coast for 10-11 miles to a cabin just north-northeast of the limestone cliffs, and here it turns right (inland) and crosses the Kwiktalik Mountains. This range is a low series of hills (1,000 to 1,500 feet) with moderate grades. Vegetation ranges from small spruce to barren ground. Some of the grades are long (1 mile) but none are excessively steep. The barren sections are often windblown and icy. The last descent to Golovin Bay is long and sometimes runs side hill. At the Shelter Cabin on the coast, the trail turns sharply right and crosses the ice to Golovin. The village is located on a spit and is easily seen. (Counting the cabin below Elim where the trail leaves the ice, there are three shelter cabins on the trail, one of them being nine miles from the coast where the trail intersects McKinley Creek).

Golovin to White Mountain18 miles

From Golovin the trail crosses the ice on Golovin Lagoon to the Mudyutok River and goes up this river to the Fish River and then to White Mountain. This section is short, easy travel unless a strong wind is blowing down the rivers, and then it can be difficult going.

White Mountain to Safety55 miles

The trail from White Mountain continues up the Fish River for another 2-2.5 miles to a large island. It makes a sharp left turn and starts overland. This turn should be well marked, since a trail continues up the river to Council also. One-fourth mile after leaving the river, a trail comes in from the right (also from Council) and this intersection should be well marked but can be confusing if snow machiners or mushers have departed from the trail. The Iditarod Trail crosses a series of low hills with moderate grades and starts through the Klokeblok River drainage. There is a little vegetation (willow) along some of the creeks. At Topkok, the trail turns sharply right along the coast. The Nome Kennel Club has a shelter cabin at the bottom of Topkok Hill. There is little in the way of visual references and each hill looks like the last. Wind often exceeds 40 knots. From Topkok, the trail follows the coast westward to Solomon, passing south of the actual village (near the Old Solomon village site) from here to Safety Roadhouse, the trail is the road.

Safety to Nome22 miles

From Safety Roadhouse to Nome the trail runs along the Nome-Solomon Road except where it passes around Cape Nome and the last seven miles into Nome. Here the trail parallels the road on the right side and presents no obstacles.

Note: As of 2012, the northern route distance is approximately 975 miles. In previous years the distance was always over 1,000 miles. Three things factor into this adjustment:

- The change in the ceremonial start (running from downtown Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip instead of Eagle River)
- The change of the restart location from Wasilla to Willow (loss of Wasilla-Knik-Yentna River runs)
- The actual year-to-year trail conditions can affect trail routing and the actual mileage will vary somewhat from year to year

“1,049 miles®” has been a symbolic figure from the inception of the race to signify the 1,000 miles or more of race trail and the number 49 depicts Alaska as the 49th state.

NORTHERN ROUTE TRAIL DESCRIPTIONS

Pronunciation, Population and Facts of Interest

Anchorage (ang-ker-ij) – (ANC) Lat 61.12 Long 149.55

Population: 301,000 – Anchorage is Alaska's largest city with a full range of transportation and hotel accommodations. The race starts downtown on Fourth Avenue. Interesting side trips during March include Portage Glacier or downhill skiing at Mount Alyeska, both less than an hour drive south, or head north to Hatcher Pass for cross country skiing and to explore the remains of Independence Mine.

Willow (wil-oh) – Lat 61.45.25N Long 150.03.10W

Population: 1,658 – The restart takes place on Willow Lake at Mile Marker.

Yentna Station Roadhouse -- (YENT-na) -- (YENT) Lat 61.46 N Long 150.41W

Population: 8 – This checkpoint is at the home of the Dan and Jean Gabryzack family.

Skwentna (SKWENT-nuh) - (SKW) Lat 61.55 Long 151.11

Population: 30 – Located near the confluence of the Skwentna and Yentna Rivers. The checkpoint is located at Joe and Norma Delia's log house, also known as the Post Office. There is a store and limited lodging nearby.

Finger Lake (FL) Lat 61.59 Long 152.40

Population: 2 – In the heart of the snow country, here it is not uncommon to have 10 feet of snow on the ground. The checkpoint is at Winter Lake Lodge.

Rainy Pass (RP) Lat 62.10 Long 152.43

Population: 2 - This area represents the highest point on the Iditarod Trail as it passes over the majestic Alaska Range. Located on Puntilla Lake is Vern Humble's guiding operation. Known as Rainy Pass Lodge, it is closed down at this time of year. Iditarod uses one of their cabins for a checkpoint and another for mushers to rest in.

Rohn (RONE) (ROH) Lat 62.35 Long 153.21

Population: 0 – This area is tied with Rainy Pass as having the most spectacular scenery. The gateway to the interior, Rohn Roadhouse marks the transition point where the mushers start to venture into the flatlands of the interior, along with dropping temperatures. Situated near the confluence of the South Fork of the Kuskokwim and Tatina Rivers, the area served as one of the original Iditarod Trail Roadhouses for the dog teams carrying mail, etc. The actual roadhouse is gone, so the checkpoint is a cabin built in the 1930s. Note: most press mistakenly refer to this as Rohn River checkpoint, but there is no Rohn River. It's Rohn Roadhouse. Many mushers take their mandatory 24-hour layover here, before heading across the bleak but treacherous Farewell Bend area. No facilities or lodging are available at Rohn.

Nikolai (NIK-o-lye) (NIK) Lat 63.02 Long 154.22

Population: 101 - This is the first of many Alaska Native villages along the Iditarod Trail. There is a village store at the far end of town across the airstrip, and limited lodging is available through advance booking. The checkpoint is located in the Community Hall.

McGrath (muh-GRATH) (McG) Lat 62.57 Long 155.36

Population: 341 - Located near the confluence of the Kuskokwim and Takotna Rivers, this thriving community has two stores, a bar and a restaurant. It's the last chance to buy aviation gas, except for Galena, until you reach the coast at Unalakleet. Lodging is also available with advance booking.

Takotna (Ta-COT-na) -- (TAK) Lat 63.00 Long 156.04.

Population: 49 – Situated on the banks of the Takotna River, this town has a store and restaurant. This is one of the smallest towns with one of the biggest welcomes.

Ophir (OH-fur) (OPH) Lat 63.08 Long 156.31

Population: 0 – Now a ghost town, it took its name in 1908 from a nearby placer creek, one of a dozen streams in Alaska to be named by Bible-reading prospectors, for the lost country of Ophir, the source of King Solomon's gold. Many items and artifacts still remain untouched. The checkpoint is at Dick and Audra Forsgren's cabin.

Cripple (krip-uh l) Lat. 63.41 N Long 156.20W

Population: 0 – Part of the famous Iditarod Mining District, which saw $35 million in gold taken out of the area between 1908 and 1925. Not bad when you figure that gold was only worth $20 an ounce in those days. This checkpoint marks the “official” halfway point in the race on the northern route.

Ruby (ROO-bee) Lat. 64.44 N Long 155.29W

Population: 173 – The first checkpoint on the famous Yukon River, the longest river in Alaska, stretching 1,875 miles from its headwaters in the Yukon Territory of Canada to the Bering Sea. Gold was discovered here in 1907, but no town was established until 1911 when additional gold deposits were discovered on Long Creek, causing a rush of prospectors to the area. This is the home of 1975 Iditarod champion Emmitt Peters. Ruby was home for many of the mushers who carried mail for the Northern Commercial Company from Tanana to Ruby. The trip took four days and paid $5 a day. Dog team mail ended here in 1931. The checkpoint is in the community hall.

Galena (gull-LEE-na) Lat.64.44 Long 156.56

Population: 487 - Galena derived its name from lead sulfate ore found in the area, known chemically as galena. The town was founded in 1920 when Natives moved down river from the old town site of Louden because of the availability of firewood. A man could cut 250 cords a winter and sell it for $8 a cord to the stern-wheelers that worked the rivers in the summer. This was the home of Edgar Nollner, the last living musher who carried the lifesaving diphtheria serum along this trail to Nome in 1925. The checkpoint is at the "old" community hall downtown.

Nulato (nu-LAH-toe) Lat. 64.43 Long 158.05

Population: 275 - Originally founded in 1838 at the confluence of the Nulato and Yukon Rivers, Nulato was a Russian trading post. Without a stockade, the Indians promptly burned it down. In 1841, the Russian American Company rebuilt the trading post consisting of seven log buildings, but again without a stockade. In 1851, the Koyukan Indians again burned it down and killed most of the inhabitants. In 1853 the trading post was rebuilt at the present town site, two miles upriver from the old site. The checkpoint is the community hall.

Kaltag -- (KAL-tag) (KAL) Lat 64.19 Long 158.45

Population: 205 – This town signals a brief respite from the driving winds as the trail from here leads overland through Kaltag Portage to the coast of Norton Sound where the winds take on new meaning. Kaltag is the home of Virginia Kalland, widow of Edgar Kalland who was one of the original mushers who helped carry lifesaving diphtheria serum along this trail 60 years ago. She also owns one of Kaltag's three stores. Note: The location for mushers' check-in is at Rich Burnham's house, but the official checkpoint and gathering spot is the community hall about a block away. Please don't treat the Burnham home as a checkpoint.

Unalakleet (YOU-na-la-kleet) (UNK) Lat 63.53 Long 160.42

Population: 692 – Situated on the coast of Norton Sound, just north of the Unalakleet River, this village is the largest community on the Iditarod Trail between Willow and Nome. Two well-stocked stores as well as two restaurants can be found here along with limited lodging by advance booking. The trail is now entering the gateway to the Bering Sea and from here on the mushers can expect sudden storms and an ample supply of wind. The checkpoint is in front of the A.C. store.

Shaktoolik (Shak-TOO-lick) (SHAK) Lat 64.20 Long 161.10

Population: 258 – One look down the street at the snowdrifts will tell you this is one of the windiest stretches of the trail. From here the trail continues overland for a short distance, then leads the mushers out onto the ice of Norton Bay, one of the most treacherous segments of trail that the musher may have to contend with. The checkpoint is at the armory.

Koyuk (Koy-uk) (KOY) Lat 64.56 Long 161.10

Population: 347 – Once this checkpoint is reached, the mushers can breathe a sigh of relief as almost all of the rest of the trail is at least over land. The checkpoint is the City Rec Center.

Elim (EE-lim) (ELM) Lat 64.37 Long 162.15

Population: 332 – The checkpoint is at the fire hall (check at the store for directions). From here the trail heads over the hills of the Kwiktalik Mountains inland a little ways to the next checkpoint on Golovin Bay. The checkpoint is at the fire hall. Ask at the village store.

Golovin (GULL-uh-vin) (GOL) Lat 64.32 Long 163.50

Population: 171 – Not an official checkpoint, but a community with a large welcome. Golovin has one store. From here the trail heads across Golovin Bay, then overland to the next checkpoint.

White Mountain (WT MT) Lat 64.41 Long 163.24

Population: 199 – Just 77 miles from Nome, this village is located on the banks of the Fish River. It takes its name from that of a picturesque nearby mountain. Checkpoint is located in the community hall building up the hill from the store.

Safety (SAF) Lat 64.27 Long 164.49

Population: 0 – The last checkpoint before Nome, just 22 miles away. Here the mushers are on the coast of the Bering Sea and travel on the beach most of the way to Nome.

Nome (OME) Lat 64.30 Long 165.24

Population: 3,695 –The end of the Iditarod Trail! Prospectors established this Seward Peninsula city as Anvil City after adjacent Anvil Creek in 1898. A year later gold was discovered in beach sand and it became a boomtown, home of 30,000 gold seekers. The city was renamed Nome in 1899 after a nearby point on Norton Sound, which got its name in 1853 when a British Navy cartographer misinterpreted a chart notation of "? Name" and recorded it as Nome. The gold rush atmosphere still abounds, especially when "Iditarod Fever" hits town with the entire community turning out to welcome the mushers and visitors alike to their community. Numerous stores, restaurants and bars line Nome's infamous "Front Street", but lodging is at a premium. If the Nugget Inn and Polaris Hotel are full, check with the Nome Convention and Visitors Bureau for the availability of "bed and breakfast" accommodations.

NORTHERN ROUTE DESCRIPTION OF THE IDITAROD TRAIL BETWEEN CHECKPOINTS

Between checkpoints

Anchorage to Campbell Airstrip 11 miles

The ceremonial start of the Iditarod Trail that begins on Fourth Avenue in downtown Anchorage and runs through the snow covered streets and trails of Anchorage. Each musher participates and carries an IditaRider, a passenger who has successfully bid ($500-$7,500) to ride in the basket of a particular musher to the end of this 11-mile ceremonial start.

Willow to Yentna Station 42 miles

The trail begins on Willow Lake, travels across frozen lakes and swamps before the trail winds through a birch forest before dropping onto the Big Susitna River via Corral Hill. Most of the trail is flat. Once the teams drop onto the Big Susitna River they travel via river to the Yentna Station Checkpoint, which is located on the Yentna River.

Yentna Station to Skwentna 30 miles

The mushers run the Yentna all the way to the confluence with the Skwentna River and the town of Skwentna, three miles from the mouth. These slow moving glacial rivers normally provide very good trails. They are all from one fourth to more than a mile wide and freeze thick enough to provide a good trail until late into the winter. Hazards are sometimes plentiful with rough ice to manhandle a sled over and around. Overflow, water running on top of the ice, can be a very real problem in some conditions.

Skwentna to Finger Lake 40 miles

From the Skwentna checkpoint the trail continues up the river for one mile and turns off on the left bank. It continues inland across Eight-Mile Swamp through spruce timber and cottonwoods to the Old Skwentna Roadhouse. The crossing is at a 45-degree angle to the river. The trail climbs up a creek drainage turning first right and then left into an open swamp, long and narrow, and through spruce forest for 2-2.5 miles to Shell Creek. Overflow and/or open water is often a problem. From Shell Creek the trail continues, crossing One Stone Lake. From there to Finger Lake are open swamps and thin stands of spruce and alder. The trail crosses to the north shore and the Finger Lake cabin. All grades are moderate or gentle with no hard climbs and no dense woods.

Finger Lake to Puntilla Lake (Rainy Pass Lodge) 30 miles

At Finger Lake the trail drops sharply onto Red Lake leaving the lake at the northwest corner. It climbs steeply leaving the lake at the northwest corner. It climbs steeply up a small creek bed to the benches above Finger Lake. From here it is through swamps, spruce and alder forest to Happy River. The two miles before Happy River are through dense spruce. At Happy River there are three benches to descend with the first being the longest drop, known as the "Steps". A small drainage leads down to the level bench and the trail drops straight down this "V". From this bench the trail descends off the right end to the bench along the river. The last drop is onto the river itself. This section is one of the most hazardous on the trail and extreme caution must be exercised here. The trail will be well marked and the descents will have a straight lead-in. In 2012 the trail will be routed around the famous “Steps” due to a road that was created by a mineral exploration company. This trail re-routing is not yet a permanent change.

Once on the river itself, the trail turns left to the mount (200') and then right, going up the Skwentna River. Approximately 1/4 mile up the Skwentna is a draw coming down from the right and the trail goes up this draw. A ramp may have to be constructed because the bank has washed away leaving a cut bank four to eight feet high. Once into the draw, stay to the right side as the left side leads to a vertical wall 6' high and is impassable. The draw is only 125 - 150 yards long and once on top the trail continues northwest to Shirley Lake passing through spruce and cottonwood and rolling hills. No grades are steep or long. The steepest grade is up the draw from the Skwentna River. The trail exits Shirley Lake on the northwest side and continues through spruce and cottonwood to Round Mountain. There are some moderate but short grades and a couple of steep but short grades both up and down. At Round Mountain a side hill is encountered and brush is encroaching on the trail. From here to Puntilla Lake is a distance of three to four miles and is gentle terrain with open swamps and sparse timber.

Puntilla Lake to Rohn..... 35 miles

Puntilla Lake (Rainy Pass Lodge) is 1,835 feet above sea level and from here the trail climbs through Rainy Pass reaching 3,160 feet above sea level. From the lodge the trail climbs a small hill and enters the valley. It runs on the north side of the ridge that separates the Indian Creek drainage from Happy River drainage. The trail gradually crosses to the right side of the valley and where Happy River forks three ways, follows Pass Creek (the right fork) into Rainy Pass itself. The climb this far is gentle but the terrain is barren with a few willow thickets and the snow is wind packed to ice and very rough. Once across Rainy Pass Lake (Puntilla Lake), the trail climbs to the summit and descends along Dalzell Creek. Dalzell Creek runs to the Tatina River and here the trail turns sharply left and continues five to six miles to the Rohn checkpoint.

Rohn to Nikolai..... 75 miles

The trail leaves Rohn and crosses the South Fork of the Kuskokwim River and turns sharply left (inland) about 3/4 mile below the Rohn checkpoint. From here to Farewell Lake the trail crosses sharp hills with moderate and steep grades, both up and down. Some of the grades are up to 1/2 - 1 3/4 miles long. The trail is very narrow in places and in some of the denser stands of spruce is a tunnel. The worst area is the Tin Creek with a steep side hill drop to the canyon floor and a climb up the other side. This climb is to the right of the gorge (100-150 yards) and should be well marked. The trail from Tin Creek to Farewell Lake continues through spruce and alder. In the open areas the trail is but a rut when the snow is light. It crosses several "wallows" which are very rough. Approaching Farewell Lake the terrain levels out somewhat and crosses a small lake a couple of miles prior to dropping onto Farewell. This is bison (buffalo) country!

The trail leaves Farewell Lake at the northwest end of the lake and for the next 8-10 miles passes through dense spruce forest and across lakes. It then enters the old "Farewell Burn." In the summer of 1984, the B.L.M. cleared the trail through the Burn. It is 25 feet wide and was cleared to bare ground so there are no windfalls and it is a good trail. The terrain is rolling with short moderate grades. This trail segment is approximately 20 miles long and it then enters very large open swamps to the Salmon River.

Trail markings are the only visual references for direction. At the Salmon River the trail turns to the right, crosses the Salmon River at the cabins and continues to Nikolai through spruce and alder stands and open swamps. It crosses the Kuskokwim River into Nikolai. The one danger area through the Burn is at Bear Creek, which has a history of being open. Bridges will be built, if needed, and the area will be well marked.

Nikolai to McGrath48 miles

From Nikolai, the trail runs west to McGrath. The terrain is mostly flat. The trail passes through open swamps, small stands of spruce and alder and runs on the river itself. There are no grades to consider. This section is well traveled and should present no problems unless deep fresh snow is encountered, at which time the trail is very soft. McGrath is a major staging area and many trails run out of town. The Iditarod will be well marked to prevent confusion.

McGrath to Takotna 18 miles

The trail leaves McGrath at the east end of Runway Seven, the same place where it enters. Crossing the Kuskokwim River to the mouth of the Takotna River and turning west, the trail continues over Porcupine Ridge to Takotna. The terrain is gentle rolling hills with moderate grades and is mainly spruce timber with a few open areas. This is a well-traveled trail and should present no problems.

Takotna to Ophir 23 miles

From Takotna the Iditarod Trail is the State Highway that runs to Ophir. Take the road to the right at the fork 1 1/2 miles out of Takotna. Normally there is no snow plowing on the Ophir fork of the highway; however, it is well traveled by dog teams and snow machines all winter. It is seven miles to the top of the grade and then runs down into the Innoko River Valley. Bridges and streams are identified with State of Alaska signs. The trail leaves the road occasionally to cross ridges and to avoid drifted areas. These departures should be well marked.

Ophir to Cripple..... 73 miles

Out of the Ophir checkpoint the trail follows a cat trail along the Innoko River into the old village site about a mile further along. It crosses the river again six miles out of the checkpoint. From the crossing, the trail heads northeast. The terrain is flat with sparse scrub spruce with a few rolling hills as it approaches Cripple.

Cripple to Ruby..... 70 miles

Leaving Cripple, the country stays the same for 15-to-20 miles. Then the trees get larger and thicker, with larger rolling hills. At Bear Creek, the trail enters a cat trail that should be easy to follow. At Sulatna Crossing (steel bridge), most of the mushers stop to rest and feed their dogs. (Sulatna Crossing is not a checkpoint.) There is a small lake on the left. Immediately after the bridge, the trailbreakers will punch out 15 to 20 parking spots for dog teams. The trail follows this road all the way to Ruby Hills. There are many long grades and much side hill to travel.

Ruby to Galena 50 miles

From Ruby to Kaltag, the next 134 miles is on the Yukon River, passing through Galena and Nulato. In most years the local traffic keeps the river trail hard and fast. This section is well marked because wind and snow can cover the trail very quickly. Checkpoint is usually in the Galena Community Center.

Galena to Nulato 37 miles

About 10 miles outside of Galena is the picturesque Bishop’s Rock, where some of the most famous photographs of mushers are taken. In most years the local traffic keeps the river trail hard and fast. This section is well marked because wind and snow can cover the trail very quickly.

Nulato to Kaltag47 miles

The final stretch on the Yukon River before turning inland for the Kaltag Portage headed towards the coast. Kaltag always offers a warm welcome. Checkpoint is at Kaltag Community Center.

Kaltag to Unalakleet 85 miles

From Kaltag, the trail exits from the northwest end of the runway. The next 15 miles run through spruce forest and open areas along the Kaltag River, climbing gently to the summit of the Portage. Continuing through similar terrain, it starts down the Unalakleet drainage to Old Woman Cabin at the base of Old Woman Mountain. This mountain is an excellent landmark. The trail continues past the mountain and runs along the left side of the Unalakleet drainage. The terrain is gentle rolling hills. Little or no vegetation can be seen along the trail until near Unalakleet. Approximately five miles out of town the trail hits the river. With the exception of a few short portages across horseshoe bends, the trail follows the river into Unalakleet. The last 32 miles (from Old Woman Mountain) is often windy and the snow is usually wind packed and crusty. In fact, the entire coast is often very windy.

Unalakleet to Shaktoolik40 miles

To Shaktoolik, the trail crosses several low ridges with mostly gentle and moderate grades. The vegetation is stunted spruce and willow thickets. Leaving Unalakleet, the trail turns northward and parallels the coast to Power, then turns inland, crossing behind Blueberry Point. It then drops back toward the coast at Egavik, a summer fish camp. A series of long low hills is crossed with grades being moderate to gentle but some are up to a mile long. The crest of the last ridge is about 17 miles from Shaktoolik and the village is visible from here. The next four to five miles are down a moderate to steep serpentine grade through willow thickets and stunted spruce. The turns are moderate but can be extremely slick. At the bottom, the trail follows the coastal dune on the landward side the last 12 miles to Shaktoolik. The trail from the bottom of the hill to the checkpoint runs over ice on the Shaktoolik River and is often rough. The village is on the left.

Shaktoolik to Koyuk..... 50 miles

The trail from Shaktoolik bears north, crossing the peninsula. It runs on land for eight to nine miles then starts across Norton Bay at the mouth of Reindeer Cove. The terrain to this point is mostly gentle swells of the ground with no true grades. There is no vegetation. Approximately five miles onto the ice is Island Point and Little Mountain. It appears to be a large rock rising from the sea ice, but is in fact the head of a small peninsula. The trail passes a shelter cabin on the south side of Little Mountain. From here a compass bearing of 340 degrees leads into Koyuk. Marking on this segment of the trail usually consists of laths with reflective tape alternating with spruce boughs. Every mile will be marked. The ice is often rough.

Koyuk to Elim.....48 miles

When leaving Koyuk for Elim, the trail follows the coast, almost doubling back on itself. It runs southeast to Bald Head and Castle Rock where it turns westerly, following the coast to Moses Point. Moses Point is a spit that, with the coastline, forms Kwiniuk Inlet. The trail parallels the spit for five to six miles where it joins the mainland. It continues on the sea ice along the coast, passing the abandoned F.A.A. Station. From there to Elim two routes may be used. One continues along the ice to Elim; the other takes the road along the coast to Elim, which is six-to-eight miles away.

Elim to Golovin (not an official checkpoint, but an integral part of the race)28 miles

The trail leaves Elim, following the ice along the coast for 10-11 miles to a cabin just north-northeast of the limestone cliffs, and here it turns right (inland) and crosses the Kwiktalik Mountains. This range is a low series of hills (1,000 to 1,500 ft.) with moderate grades. Vegetation ranges from small spruce to barren ground. Some of the grades are long (1 mile) but none are excessively steep. The barren sections are often windblown and icy. The last descent to Golovin Bay is long and sometimes runs side hill. At the Shelter Cabin on the coast, the trail turns sharply right and crosses the ice to Golovin. The village is located on a spit and is easily seen. (Counting the cabin below Elim where the trail leaves the ice, there are three shelter cabins on the trail, one of them being nine miles from the coast where the trail intersects McKinley Creek).

Golovin to White Mountain 18 miles

From Golovin the trail crosses the ice on Golovin Lagoon to the Mudyutok River and goes up this river to the Fish River and then to White Mountain. This section is short, easy travel unless a strong wind is blowing down the rivers, and then it can be difficult going.

White Mountain to Safety 55 miles

The trail from White Mountain continues up the Fish River for another 2-2.5 miles to a large island. It makes a sharp left turn and starts overland. This turn should be well marked, since a trail continues up the river to Council also. One-fourth mile after leaving the river, a trail comes in from the right (also from Council) and this intersection should be well marked but can be confusing if snow machiners or mushers have departed from the trail. The Iditarod Trail crosses a series of low hills with moderate grades and starts through the Klokeblok River drainage. There is a little vegetation (willow) along some of the creeks. At Topkok, the trail turns sharply right along the coast. The Nome Kennel Club has a shelter cabin at the bottom of Topkok Hill. There is little in the way of visual references and each hill looks like the last.

Wind often exceeds 40 knots. From Topkok, the trail follows the coast westward to Solomon, passing south of the actual village (near the Old Solomon village site). From here to Safety Roadhouse, the trail is the road.

Safety to Nome22 miles

From Safety Roadhouse to Nome the trail runs along the Nome-Solomon Road except where it passes around Cape Nome and the last seven miles into Nome. Here the trail parallels the road on the right side and presents no obstacles.

IDITAROD TRAIL COMMUNICATIONS

IMPORTANT: Media access to communications methods varies from checkpoint to checkpoint.

While the Iditarod Trail Committee (ITC) does not have the ability to provide checkpoint Internet access for the media between Anchorage and Nome, each year there are improvements in communities along the trail for public Internet access. GCI, Inc., our official communications partner, has cellular coverage in many communities along the trail. Contact your local GCI representative to discuss cellular service availability and how it can be accessed.

ITC strongly advises journalists to have their laptop computers configured by GCI immediately following the media briefing on Wednesday, March 2 at The The Lakefront Anchorage Hotel, Anchorage, in the third floor foyer in order to allow for greater success with Internet connections when public internet access points are available along the trail. The Iditarod Trail Committee has wireless Internet access available for media in Nome at Iditarod Race Headquarters in the Nome Mini Convention Center.

Please do not attempt any interviews with mushers at checkpoints until they have fed and strowed their dogs! This is a crucial time for each sled dog team, and members of the press are asked not to approach any musher until this process is completed. This may take up to an hour.

Race rules require that mushers stay in a central location in every checkpoint, rather than scatter throughout the villages. There will be specific checkpoint areas in each checkpoint. Each area will have a designated mushers' sleeping area and we ask the cooperation of reporters, photographers and camera crews in not interrupting the mushers during their chosen rest times. Mushers will be available in other areas of the checkpoints for interviews and pictures.

Please understand that this is a race and the first priority for the mushers is the care of their dogs and their race. They will be much more apt to be cooperative if you cooperate with them from the beginning.

The following is a list of recommendations for those of you traveling up the trail. The main thing to remember is that you are traveling through rural Alaska , so come prepared to provide your OWN food and shelter.

We recommend you:

- Offer to pay if invited to sleep in village school or community hall.
- Offer to pay for food that may be offered by villagers.
- Consider purchasing the beautiful Alaska Native works of art while in villages.
- Take the time to find out about the many wonderful folks in the villages along the trail who will make great human interest stories.
- Remember and respect the cultural differences you experience along the trail.
- Help the local economy by patronizing local restaurants and grocery stores.
- Stop in and visit at local schools. It's a great way to learn more about the village you're in, and the students enjoy the interaction.
- Use a telephoto lens to get close up still and video shots.
- Ask for permission from musher to take pictures of dog teams.

- Wait for interviews until mushers have had time to feed their dogs and to rest.
- Look for official race information from the checkpoints. The media coordinator is available to answer any questions you might have.

Please do not:

- Take alcohol to any of the village checkpoints. It is against the law in most communities along the trail.
- Rely on someone else to take care of you, or avail yourself of the Iditarod food at checkpoint.
- Try to get lengthy interview as soon as musher pulls into checkpoint, or disturb a resting dog team.
- Let your story be influenced by rumors. Please take time to verify the story you're working on.

PACKING FOR THE IDITAROD TRAIL

Clothing choices and comfort are very important, but be aware that the logistics of traveling on the trail can be very labor intensive. Knowing how to pack and transport your gear to and from the airplane will save a tremendous amount of effort and will assist with everyone's logistics. Try packing so you can haul your gear in one trip. Here's how!

Baggage:

- One large duffel bag (preferably with 'U' shaped zipper)
- Daypack and/or fanny pack
- Camera bag
- Short plastic sled
- Cinch sleeping bag and pad down between the handles of the duffel with snaps. Strap bundle down to the sled using bungees.
- Keep heavy clothing handy by snapping it under the bungees. This arrangement should be easy to drag around and stows well in an airplane. Rigid frame packs do not stow well in aircraft.

Clothing:

- Choose clothing that can all be worn together
- Use layering in everything
- Wear insulated boots such as "Bunny Boots" or open cell neoprene
- Have a pair of "snow sneakers" for use in checkpoints
- 40 above to 40 below clothing
- Polypropylene or cotton long underwear
- Musher style insulated hat
- Polar fleece shirt and pants
- Face mask
- Insulated scarf or cowl
- Windproof jacket and snow pants (bibs)
- Felt gloves with insulated over mitts
- Oversized heavy parka with hood

Other:

- Any good quality sleeping bag rated from -10 to -20 degrees Fahrenheit
- Foam pad or Therma-Rest type mattress
- Avoid extra heavy duty weight bag unless you're at a tent checkpoint
- Small bag of high energy snack food
- Sunglasses
- Flashlight
- Camera gear
- Please avoid bringing dryers, curling irons, electronic razors, large-frame backpacks, etc.

2016 ALPHABETICAL MUSHER BIOGRAPHIES & PHOTOS

Tore Albrigtsen – Tromso, NORWAY

Website: activetromso.no

Tore Albrigtsen, 49, was born and raised in Tromso, Norway. Tore is a wilderness guide and together with his girlfriend, Sandra Gollor, runs his own company, Active Tromso, offering dog sled tours, kayaking and mountaineering. He began mushing in 1978 and ran his first Finnmark race in 1987. He has completed that race 13 times. He ran the Iditarod in 2006 to celebrate the 10 year anniversary of his first long distance race. He said he had wanted to run the Iditarod ever since the first Norwegian, Stein Fjestad, ran it in 1977. He has also participated in classic ski expeditions and did the Finnmark and Iditarod on skis with one dog in 1996 and 1997. He climbed Mt. McKinley in 2007. Tore is a member of the Tromso 06 Omeen Sled Dog Club and says he enjoys kayaking, climbing and the Liverpool Football Club. He is the father of one adult daughter, Silje and the grandfather of Emma, 4.

Elliot Anderson – Big Lake, AK

Website: None

Elliot Anderson, 24, was born and raised in Milton, Wisconsin. Before moving to Alaska in 2012, he worked on a ranch in Wyoming riding horses and hunting. He came to Alaska to be a tour guide on Mendenhall Glacier running dogs. He lists his occupation as dog musher and says his hobbies are hunting, fishing, trapping and harvesting from the land.

Ken Anderson – Fairbanks, AK

Website: www.windycreekkennel.com

Ken Anderson, 43, was born in Minnesota. He says he began mushing at birth as his parents had a recreational team. When he was in third grade, his father bought him a book on the Iditarod, and he decided to someday compete in the Race. Before moving to Alaska, he attended the University of Minnesota and was a dog handler. He came to Alaska in 1993 to learn more about mushing and study biology at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. He's been running the Iditarod since 1999. Ken is married to Gwen Holdman, also an Iditarod veteran. Ken says, "I love the race." He lists his occupation as dog musher and says his hobbies are sailing, carpentry, boating and writing. Ken and Gwen are the parents of twins, Marais and Leif, age 7 and Lael "Lilly", age 5.

Kristin Bacon – Big Lake, AK
 Website: www.baconsacres.com

Kristin Bacon, 42, was born in Youngstown, Ohio, and resided in various parts until 1997 when she graduated from the Ohio State University with a degree in Physical Therapy. In early 1999, after a phone interview with Providence Children’s Hospital, Kristin was offered a job in Alaska. Seeking a chance to work in a hospital setting with children, and intrigued by the unknowns Alaska had to offer, Kristin decided to make the move. Not only did the children’s hospital provide an excellent opportunity to grow professionally, Kristin met a mentoring doctor who introduced her to his sled dog team. Kristin began helping at his kennel annually for several weeks while he and his wife traveled to Kauai.

In 2005, Kristin began volunteering at the Skwentna checkpoint during the Iditarod. Now that she has her own team, she is focused on preparing herself and her dogs to run the Iditarod. Originally, Kristin hoped to qualify to run in 2014. Due to poor winter conditions for her first two race seasons, which caused several qualifying races to be cancelled, the steep learning curve encountered to become competent at training/racing sled dogs, plus the challenge of being the sole financial provider for her kennel, it took longer than expected to be prepared. Kristin is now excited to run Iditarod in 2016.

When she isn’t training for races, Kristin really enjoys sharing the dogs with the community during events like Ikidarod (free dog sled rides for kids with special needs), Aurora Dog Mushing events (Junior and Business person races, vaccination clinics, etc) as well as doing adapted mushing activities with her pediatric clients at Bacon’s acres.

Kristin also continues to work as a pediatric physical therapist servicing families in Anchorage, the Mat-Su Valley and remote Alaskan school districts. She is the secretary of the Aurora Dog Musers and in her free time enjoys photography, international travel, gardening and learning to surf.

John Baker – Kotzebue, AK
 Website: www.dreamtrywin.com

John Baker, 53, was born and raised in Kotzebue, Alaska. He began mushing in 1995 and was interested in the Iditarod after watching the race in its early years. He ran his first Iditarod in 1996 and has been in every race since. He has 13 top ten Iditarod finishes, and became the first Iditarod champion from Northwest Alaska when he won the 2011 Iditarod, and the first Inupiat champion as well. Baker is a self-employed business owner and enjoys the rural Alaska life. He has a son, Alex, 27, a veteran of the Jr. Iditarod and a daughter, Tahayla, 14. A commercial pilot, he says that his hobby is flying.

Jodi Bailey – Chatanika, AK
 Website: www.dewclawkennel.com

Jodi Bailey, 47, grew up on the island of Marthas Vineyard MA. She earned her BA in Theater Studies and Anthropology at Emory University in Atlanta GA. While at Emory she made her first summer trip to Alaska to study storytelling. After graduating in 1991 she moved to Fairbanks and never looked back. Today she and Dan Kaduce call Dew Claw Kennel in Chatanika, AK home.

Jodi began mushing in 1995 and has completed the Copper Basin 300, Tustumena 200, Denali Doubles, Kobuk 440, Yukon Quest and other races. In 2011 Jodi made history when she became the first rookie to successfully complete both the Yukon Quest and Iditarod in the same year. “What I enjoy most about long distance mushing is the time alone with your team on the trail.” Jodi explains, “When you are that focused on your team, dealing with immediate concerns in front of you, and directly exposed to the natural world around you; then you are really living in the moment.”

In addition to mushing Jodi enjoys yoga, running, biking, gardening, and cooking. Jodi is married to Yukon Quest and Iditarod veteran Dan Kaduce.

Patrick Beall – Norman, OK
 Website: None

Patrick Beall, 27, was born and raised in Oklahoma. He graduated from the University of Oklahoma with a degree in Environmental Science. He came to Alaska to work at a lodge in Bettles. He says he was first interested in mushing when he took care of 10 Alaskan Huskies in Bettles. He moved to Sterling to work with Mitch Seavey. He worked with Dallas Seavey, too, training dogs and getting qualified for the Iditarod. He lists his hobbies as live Bluegrass music and hiking with his dog, Umiak.

Travis Beals – Seward, AK

Website: www.TurningHeadsKennel.com

Travis Beals, 24, was born and raised in Seward, Alaska. “I ran my first sled dog race at four years old,” he says. “I’ve always wanted to run Iditarod.” In 2013 that dream came true. In Seward, he operates tours. He enjoys fishing, hiking and the outdoors.

Charley Bejna, 42, a self-described adventurer, was born and raised in Addison, Illinois. Charley has owned and operated Charley’s Landscaping Company for 25 years. His attraction to the last frontier began when he first came to Alaska in 1991 with his dad. They toured most of the State together. He participated in the 2007 Iditarod as Bruce Linton’s Idita-Rider and as his tag sled rider in 2008. Also in 2008, he met GB Jones at his kennel where he drove a small team down the trail. He then became GB’s handler and worked as his tag sled driver in the 2011 Iditarod, which sealed his interest in racing. Charley is looking to spend another fun winter with his dogs!!!!

Anna Berington -- Wasilla, AK

Website: seeingdoublesleddogracing.com

Anna Berington, 32, was born and raised in northern Wisconsin on a small farm. She became interested in dog sledding at an early age when she worked for a neighbor who raced sled dogs. After graduating from high school, Anna attended the University of Wisconsin River Falls and then joined the National Guard during which time she did a lot of traveling and received more education. She ended up in California working for a dog sled touring company. After some time there, she decided “giving tourists rides wasn’t enough, so moving to Alaska was an easy choice.” She started distance mushing with Dean Osmar and now works with Scott Janssen. “The best times I have had have been running dogs with my twin sister, Kristy. She taught me to mush, and I love being on the trail with her and my dogs.” She says that when she and Kristy aren’t mushing, they are running and competing in triathlons. “I love endurance racing and dogs, which is what draws me to the Iditarod.”

Kristy Berington, age 32, was born and raised in Wisconsin. She says she started mushing at the age of 10. “As a kid, I knew about the race and the dream started becoming a reality when I moved to Alaska.” She moved here in 2007 to work with Iditarod champion, Dean Osmar, and learned about distance racing sled dogs. “I love living here in Alaska where I can combine my love for adventure, dogs, endurance sports and exploring all into one.” Kristy lives in Knik where she works for Scott Janssen. Team Janssen manages a competitive racing kennel of nearly 80 dogs. “My twin sister, Anna Berington, and I will be racing the trail again this year. See if can tell us apart.” Kristy has been a musher/property manager for the last eight years. In her spare time, she says she enjoys adventure, outdoor activities, running, biking, swimming and everything else Alaska has to offer.

Robert Bundtzen – Anchorage, AK

Website: None

Robert Bundtzen, 66, grew up in Anderson (after moving to Alaska from New Mexico in 1960) where he used a small dog team while trapping. After obtaining a degree from UAF, an MD from the University of Washington and training in infectious diseases at the University of Wisconsin, he returned to Alaska to establish a consultative infectious disease practice in Anchorage. With the aid and encouragement of Jim Lanier, Robert began to run sled dogs in 1994. He has run the Iditarod 15 times, the Knik 200, Klondike 300, Tustumena 200 and the Copper Basin 300. Robert continues to be amazed at what the trained Alaskan husky can do and continues to run dogs for inexplicable reasons (he loves it). His wife Joan and son, Travis, are his most ardent fans. When not mushing, Robert enjoys hunting, fishing, reading and skiing.

Noah Burmeister – Nenana/Nome, AK

Noah Burmeister, 36, was born and raised in Nome, Alaska. He has chosen to stay in Alaska because, he says, “I enjoy the freedom and opportunities to live life to its fullest.” He went to University of Alaska-Fairbanks, where he studied Heavy Diesel Mechanics, Welding, Airframe and Power plant. He started mushing as soon as he could stand. He was born into a mushing family, with his dad, Richard, and brother, Aaron, being Iditarod veterans. Noah says, “After sitting on the sidelines for the past ten years and helping the kennel with the training, prep and trail maintenance, I am excited to be able to get on the runners again and race to Nome. I am honored to have the opportunity to be able to race a team from Alaskan Wild style Racing that just finished 3rd place with Aaron in the 2015 Iditarod and hope to be able to improve on that in 2016. The dogs, gear, diet, racing style and training methods have evolved so much in the last several years it keeps it fun and exciting to be involved and always trying to improve. We have an incredible team at Alaskan Wild style Racing of dogs, people and sponsors that all lead to the success of our kennel and without whom we would not be able to continue to race. ‘The Last Great Race’ is one of the best events in the world. It brings together the state of Alaska and thousands of volunteers every year to make it happen. It is exciting to be a part of it all.” Noah is a member of the IOFC and the IUOE. He loves his pet dog, Mr. Bo jangles, and he enjoys hunting, fishing and boating in his spare time.

Martin Buser (Boo’ zero)– Big Lake, AK
Website: www.buserdog.com

Born in Winterthur, Switzerland in 1958, Martin became fascinated with sled dogs while still a teen. He came to Alaska in 1979 to enhance his knowledge of care and training of sled dogs. He began working and training with long-time Alaskan mushers Earl and Natalie Norris and ran his first Iditarod in 1980. Martin and wife Kathy Chapoton, reside in Big Lake, Alaska, where the family owns and manages Happy Trails Kennel. Their sons, Nikolai and Rohn, both named after Iditarod checkpoints, have been involved with dogs at various times in their lives. Nikolai currently resides in Seattle. Rohn lives near the kennel and is currently an integral part of the kennel operation Rohn completed his first Iditarod in 2008, as a senior in high school.

Martin spends a great deal of time speaking in schools on the humanitarian care of animals and the spirit of the Iditarod. A favorite celebrity of the children of Alaska, Martin treats them with surprise visits from his dogs and puppies.

Martin runs the race each year with his dogs to test the success of their breeding, training and physical endurance. He regards his racers as true competitive athletes and prides his team on their longevity and spirit of competition. Says Martin, "I run the Iditarod to prove that my dogs, bred, trained and raced by Happy Trails Kennels, are the best amongst the world's long distance athletes." For nine years, Martin's 2002 team held the record for the Fastest Iditarod by completing the race in 8 days, 22 hours, 46 minutes and 2 seconds.

As tribute to his treatment of his racers, Martin was awarded the coveted Leonhard Seppala Award in 1988, 1993, 1995, and again in 1997, for the most humanitarian care of his dogs. The award was named for the most famous Alaskan musher who ran the longest and most dangerous stretch of the 1925, 674-mile diphtheria serum run from Nenana to Nome, which saved hundreds of lives.

Following Martin's 2002 Iditarod victory, the process for his becoming a naturalized citizen of the United States was completed under the burlwood monument. He then turned around in Nome and made the trip from Nome to Big Lake with his family by snow machine.

Upon completion of the 2005 Iditarod after a woodworking accident 4 days prior to the race start resulting in the amputation of a part of his finger; he was awarded both the Sportsmanship and Most Inspirational Awards by his fellow mushers.

Martin is an honorary member of Rotary. He is always involved with some project around the kennel or house. While he and Kathy moved into the retirement home that Martin built, they are still working on finishing all the details, your typical Alaskan self-built home that is never quite finished.

In the summer, Martin and his family give tours of their working kennel. The tour begins with a DVD trip from Anchorage to Nome narrated by Buser and includes his unique anecdotal stories gathered over 23 Iditarods. Visitors are offered a glimpse of a mockup of the Cripple Checkpoint complete with campfire and wall tent. Veterinary and dog care topics are discussed and of course, there's the cuddling of puppies. The tour ends with a riotous symphony of dogs barking as a team is hooked up and taken on a demo run to show folks the dogs in action.

Martin is currently the musher with the most consecutive Iditarod finishes, 29 races completed in row, 30 total finishes. We are looking forward to many more and working diligently toward a fifth Iditarod win. While the race is always the final exam, the year round interaction and relationship with the dogs is the most valuable aspect of this lifestyle. On a daily basis, we are amazed by the stamina, loyalty, honesty, and joy of our dogs. Author Brian Jacques went on a ride with Martin and the team many years ago and described the dogs as "eternal children." We couldn't agree more. It is our good fortune to be able to take care of them.

Jason Campeau – Rocky Mountain House, AB CANADA
 Website: www.jasoncampeau.com

Jason Campeau, 41, was born and raised in Ottawa, Ontario, CANADA. He graduated from the University of New Brunswick with a B.A. under an athletic scholarship playing hockey. In 1998 his team won the national championship. Growing up as a hockey player, Jason never really got the opportunity to try dog sledding, but always had a passion for it and was determined that one day, when the timing was right, he would try his hand at becoming a competitive musher. Jason eventually became a professional hockey player and then turned his competitive drive to the business world where he became a partner in two companies: Maple soft Group and CMG Sports. Now that Jason and his family live on a ranch outside of Calgary, the focus, when not busy working, has become the dogs. This is something the whole family is able to enjoy together and is one of the primary reasons it works. The goal for Atka Kennel and Jason is truly to reach out and help underprivileged children by using mushing as the platform in which to do so. "We feel that dogs and mushing are a great way to connect with kids and truly have an impact with them." Jason is married to Jennifer, and they have identical twin daughters, Jessica and Mackenzie, age 12. Jason says that he enjoys "our retreat in the mountains with the horses, dogs and Texas long horn cows."

Rick Casillo, 43, grew up in a small country town of Alder, outside of Buffalo, NY. He worked in Alden as a sub-contractor before moving to Alaska in 1999 to become a fly fishing guide. He began mushing in 2002. He says, as he watched the Race go by, he began to get interested in actually running it. He first ran in 2004. He came back in 2014, after establishing their kennel, Battle Dawgs Racing. "The primary goal of our kennel is racing the Iditarod and raising awareness for combat veterans. My wife, Jennifer, a combat veteran, and I have a non-profit organization called Battle Dawgs. This is separate from the race kennel. Battle Dawgs' focus is providing year round camps for warriors all across the country and Alaska. Activities include Iditarod, dog mushing, rafting, hiking and hunting. Our motto is 'Helping Our Warriors one step at a time.' This year we are taking the first steps in building our year round facility for warriors, families and their battle buddies." Rick lists his hobbies as "working with combat veterans and fly fishing."

Rob Cooke, 49, was born and raised in Worcester, England. He received his B.A. and M.A. in Humanities in the United Kingdom. "Originally an aircraft engineer in the UK Royal navy, I got bitten by the mushing bug and Louise and I moved to Canada to pursue the dream of completing the Yukon Quest. We have completely changed our lives and now live in the Yukon bush with our 44 Siberian Huskies. Having fulfilled the dream of running the Quest in 2013 we wanted another challenge and so decided that we would try to run both 1000 mile races in the same year. Having completed this historic feat in 2015, we thought we would try again and complete both races with better times. As the 2015 Iditarod was Fairbanks to Nome, we also want to race over the traditional Iditarod Trail. Rob is a member of the Yukon Quest Board of Directors and the Siberian Husky Club of Great Britain. He lives in Whitehorse with his "tolerant" wife, Louise.

Larry Daugherty – Eagle River, AK

Website: None

Larry Daugherty, 40, was born in Provo, Utah but raised in Arvada, Colorado until age of 13. His family then moved to Auburn, Washington where he attended high school. He was very fortunate to be a member of a successful debate team at Auburn Senior High School - an experience which he feels changed the trajectory of his life and helped him realize that success is possible through hard work, dedication and perseverance. To his eternal credit, Coach Mike Burton played an enormous role in changing Larry's life.

After high school, he attended Ripon College for one year prior to serving a 2-year mission for his church in San Diego, California. He then attended Ricks College, where he completed a 3-year paramedic training program. Through his experiences as a paramedic, he learned he enjoyed helping people in the most difficult of situations - a realization that would ultimately guide his later career choice in cancer medicine. He completed his undergraduate studies at Albertson College of Idaho with a degree in history. Shortly after 9/11, he accepted a job as a paramedic in Connecticut where he worked for a year prior to enrolling in the University of Utah School of Medicine, where he graduated in 2007, then completed his radiation oncology residency in 2012 at Drexel University in Philadelphia. He came to Eagle River, Alaska, in September of 2014 after working at the Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville, Florida. He now practices at Alaska Cancer Treatment Center in Anchorage, where he treats most types of cancer with radiation.

He says he came to Alaska to fulfil two dreams: to bring the best possible cancer care to the state of Alaska and to race in the Iditarod. He had dreamed of running the Iditarod for “as long as I can remember” and has been interested in the race since he was a kid, inspired largely by his Grandmother who was obsessed with the race. He began mushing in 2012 after winning a spot on the Fjallraven Polar competition in Scandinavia. He is married to his dream girl and incredibly supportive wife, Prairie, and is the father of five: Bailey, 15, Calvin, 13, Azalea, 9, Conrad, 6, and Charlie, 4. He says he enjoys mountain climbing, being a dad, volunteering with Radiating Hope to improve cancer care around the globe and Boy Scouts. He'd like to give a shout out to Troop 29, the youth of the Eagle River Valley Ward and Jax East Stake who he hopes to inspire that dreams are possible!

Zoya DeNure – Delta Junction, AK

Website: dogsleddenali.com

Zoya DeNure, 39, was born and raised in Wisconsin. She spent 12 years in the fashion industry working primarily as a runway & fashion model. In 2002, tired of the pressures and triviality of that lifestyle, she rented a storage unit in Madison, Wisconsin, stacked it with furniture, shoes, dresses, and headed to Alaska with a carry-on and the dream of running, living and breathing sled dogs. Her Siberian husky, Ethan, traveled with her.

Ethan has since passed, but the dream is still alive. Zoya is married to fellow dog driver John Schandelmeier, and now splits her time between homes at Maclaren River and Delta Junction, Alaska. She has two daughters; Jona, seven and Olivia, two. The family operates a rescue/rehab facility for unwanted sled dogs and is striving to focus attention on positive training techniques. Zoya loves the sport of sled dog racing, enjoys time on the trail with her team and is determined to succeed in the Iditarod.

Zoya had some initial success racing sled dogs finishing her rookie year, but has had several rocky years in her Iditarod quest since. She is determined to turn it around in the 2016 Iditarod and is embarking on an ambitious training regimen with a respectable Iditarod finish in mind.

Matthew Failor, 33, was born and raised in Ohio. He says, "My family taught me a love of the outdoors; camping, fishing, canoeing, backpacking, hunting, were all things we did on family vacations. My mom and dad and brothers and sister all enjoy an active outdoor lifestyle. My three brothers and I are Eagle Scouts." He moved to Alaska in 2006 for a summer college job as a dog handler at Gold Rush Sled Dog Tours. He graduated with a Bachelor of Fine Arts Photography in 2007. He moved to Alaska permanently in 2008 to work with Matt Hayashida and train with him and his dogs. He has worked for various mushers and in 2010, he started handling for Martin Buser and ran his first Iditarod as Martin's handler. He recently moved to Willow to run dogs under his own name. 17th Dog, Team Matthew Failor, is excited and eager to get back out onto dog mushing's greatest stage, the Iditarod. "The dogs and I spend all summer, fall and winter together living as a family and learn to work towards a common goal, improving in everything we do and never stop learning. Twenty eight canines have become my immediate family now, however, Ohio will forever be called home." Matthew is currently a dog trainer and has been manager of Alaska Icefield Expeditions for 10 years. He says he enjoys birch farming and he is a World Cup fan!

Linwood Fiedler (FEED' ler) – Willow, AK

Website: None

Linwood Fiedler, 62, was born in Vermont. He received his BSW at Carroll College and his MSW at University of Montana. He began dog mushing in 1977 and lived in Montana before moving to Alaska in 1990, after finishing eighth in his second Iditarod. He says he moved to Alaska “race Iditarod and raise my family.” For the last 16 summers, he has operated a glacier tour business in the Juneau area. Linwood says, “Mushing is what surrounds our life at the Fiedler home. I’ve been fortunate to have a wife and family that support me. After many runs to Nome and the hardships and victories it has brought me, my sled dog focus has been the joy of training and running my dogs to Nome. In each race, I try to do the best I can while caring for my dogs first.” Linwood and his wife, Kathleen, are the parents of Justin and Dalton. He says his hobby is flying super cubs.

Cindy Gallea, 64, grew up on a farm in Minnesota where she experienced the pleasure of the outdoors and the good feeling of interacting with animals. She graduated from the University of Washington in 1990 with a Master's degree in nursing. She has worked as a nurse practitioner for the last 25 years. Cindy says, "I started running sled dogs when I lived in northern Minnesota in the late 1980's. The more I ran dogs, the more my passion for the sport grew. I moved west for professional reasons and lived in Montana for 20 years. Western Montana is a dog mushing paradise with good training and breath taking beauty. But in 2010, I returned to Minnesota to be closer to family. I now live in southern Minnesota, which is not a prime dog mushing area. But my passion for sled dogs and the Iditarod remains the same. So I have run the Iditarod several times since living in Southern Minnesota. Each time, I have said it is my 'last Iditarod.' But I have found it difficult to let go of something that is deep in my soul and that gives me the opportunity to run my dogs for days through the beauty of Alaska." Cindy is the mother of two adult sons: Iditarod veteran, Jim, who still participates as a race official during the Iditarod, and Brian. She lists her hobbies as bicycling, hiking, outdoor activities, politics and "my sons and grand-daughter."

Hans Gatt – Whitehorse, YT CANADA

Website: gattsled.com

Hans Gatt, 57, grew up on a farm in Austria. His passion for sled dog racing began when he attended a dog sled race in Europe. After winning all eight races entered in his first year of racing, including the European championship, Hans moved to Canada in 1990 to race in North America. He has won the Yukon Quest four times, finished the Iditarod in the top 10 four times and finished at the top of many other races in sprint, stage, mid-distance and long distance.

He lived in Atlin, B.C. for 17 years and now lives three km south of Whitehorse, Yukon, with Susie Rogan and 48 dogs, including seven pups and 18 retired dogs. Hans says, "I took a look at the dogs in the fall and decided I still have an Iditarod team out there. I'm hoping for a good race for all the dogs and mushers in the 2016 Iditarod."

In the summer he says he rides bikes, and kayaks a bit, and builds sleds. And in the winter, "I mostly run dogs." Hans builds a line of high performance dog sleds for mid-distance, stage, and ultra-long distance racing. As of 2013, Gattsled is now also building sleds for the dog sled tourism industry with the same eye on quality and job—specific performance.

Aside from running dogs, Hans enjoys dirt bike riding and cross country skiing.

Paul, 59, was born and raised on a family farm in central Minnesota. He has raised and taken care of animals his whole life. Paul has been a carpenter and a contractor since he was 18 years old and is currently a general contractor in Kasilof, Alaska. He moved here from Minnesota in 1989, began mushing in 1992 and ran his first Iditarod in 1996 with dogs he bred up in his own kennel. He has been breeding and raising his own dogs ever since. He has placed as high as second in the Iditarod twice. "I am still looking for my first Iditarod championship. I believe in the ability of my dogs and myself and will continue to race Iditarod as long as I feel we are capable of winning the race. I love traveling with my animals and find them to be more loyal than any human could ever be! They love me without questions and in return, I love them back the same way! I would never ask them to do more than they are capable of and I will always take the best care of them that I'm capable of. I will push them to the limit as long as they are able and having a good time doing it." Paul has two adult daughters and one adult son, Kristi, Nikka and Paul Jr. He says he enjoys hunting, gardening and raising birds.

Ellen Halverson, 55, was born and raised in North Dakota. She received her degree in Biology and Music Education at Concordia College in Minnesota and then went to medical school in North Dakota. She has been a psychiatrist since 1991. She moved to Alaska in 1998 for a job at the Alaska Guidance Clinic, which is now Providence Behavioral Medicine. Ellen began mushing when she moved to Alaska and finished the Iditarod in 2007. “In many ways, ‘m not a newcomer to Iditarod. I feel like I have so much to learn and master to complete Iditarod successfully. There are always many things that affect the Iditarod, the weather, the trail, health of the dogs. I feel I can do a better job of preparing myself and the dogs for this adventure. I am the most content when I am out with the dogs. I have not been successful in completing Iditarod in my last two attempts. So I am back this year with my furry friends to “get ‘er done.” “The help and support I received on the trail is heartwarming and much appreciated .” Ellen has a son, Peter, age 12. She lists her hobbies as Icelandic horses, fitness, health and biohacking

Mary Helwig – Willow, AK

Website: <https://m.facebook.com/bravokennel?ref=bookmarks>

Mary Helwig, 32, was born in Virginia. She says she always loved and wanted to work with dogs, but growing up in southern California, mushing never crossed her mind. After her 2006 graduation from North Park University in Chicago with a B.A. in Psychology, she moved to Alaska to work for the Christian non-profit organization, Covenant Youth of Alaska (CYAK.org). She moved to Unalakleet to work as a youth leader in the local church during the winters and head cook at the Covenant Bible Camp 10 miles upriver during the summers. She also spent many weekends in the villages on the coast from Unalakleet to Nome cooking for youth retreats and working with the local youth. "I had my first experience on a sled during a short women's dog sled race put on by the Norton Sound Sled Dog Club. I was instantly hooked. After moving from Unalakleet, I worked as a part time handler for Jonrowe Racing Kennel to explore my interest. In 2011, I moved back to Unalakleet to work for Siku Kennel and 2010 Iditarod musher William 'Middy' Johnson. I ran my first mid-distance race that season (the Portage 200) and I knew I was all in. I formed my own team in 2013 and am thrilled to be running Iditarod with my own dogs, seven of which I bred and raised myself. Even though I lost my home and nearly all my belongings in the Sockeye wildfire, I am determined to run my first Iditarod in 2016. I am looking forward to mushing 'home' to Unalakleet and greeting my friends from there to Nome." For the last three years, Mary has worked as a financial analyst and is now going to school studying to be a veterinary technician. She says she enjoys gardening, hiking and serving.

Karin Hendrickson – Willow, AK

Website: www.blueonblackdogs.com

Karin Hendrickson, 45, was raised in the small mountain town of Mt. Baldy, California. She has a BA in Environmental Conservation from the University of Colorado at Boulder and has worked in environmental regulation since 1998. For the last 10 years, she has been an environmental manager here in Alaska and lives north of Willow.

"I saw my first sled dog in March, 2002, when I came up to volunteer for Iditarod. By 2003, I had sold everything I owned, quit my job, and moved to Alaska to become a handler. After two years as a handler, I tried to quit my dog habit. That didn't last long—I was miserable without dogs!"

"I started building my own team in 2006. I really never expected to do any racing, much less run the Iditarod! I am not too sure how it all happened, but just two years later I found myself signed up for my first Iditarod. 2016 will be my fifth time to leave the starting line of 'The Last Great Race.' I was hit by a truck while training last fall and broke my back in three places. Luckily all my dogs were O.K., but I wasn't able to run in 2015. I am working hard to overcome my injuries and make it back on the trail in 2016."

"I am one of a very few mushers to work full-time through the winter. My biggest challenge is trying to fit training and racing in around the demands of my job. It is just this side of impossible to get everything done, but somehow we make it happen."

Before dogs, she says she used to telemark ski, rock climb, white water kayak, train horses, hike and all kinds of other outdoor sports. Now she spends so much time with her dogs that she doesn't have time for other hobbies.

Trent Herbst – Ketchum, ID

Website: www.trentherbst.com

Trent Herbst, 45, was born and raised in Wisconsin. He completed his education at University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse with a major in elementary education and has been a teacher ever since. He became interested in the Iditarod while teaching in Switzerland when his students wanted to hear all about the Iditarod Race. He began mushing in 2005. He says, "Happy to be back... love the dogs and traveling down the historic trail." Trent will be running yearlings from Ed & Tasha Stielstra's Nature's Kennel once again. He says, "Huge thanks to students (past and present), family friends, and Tim for all the prodding and support to get back on the trail." He now lives in Idaho where he teaches fourth grade. He summers at their property in the Homer/Anchor Point area. Trent is married to Candida. They are the parents of two daughters, Kali, 13, and Kire, age 4. Trent is a member of P.R.I.D.E., American Pack Rafting Association and Alternative Education Resource Organization. He lists his interests as rivers, family, dogs, travel and teaching.

Geir Idar Hjelvik, 54, was born in Molde, Norway and raised in the village of Hjelvik. He lived in Trondheim for 18 years working as an excavator operator. Fourteen years ago, he moved to the Norjordet to work, to mush and for dancing competitions. Geir has been a traditional log cabin craftsman for 20 years. He began mushing in 1987 and started his mushing career skjoring with a German Shepherd. His first litter of Alaska husky pups was born in 1989, bloodlines from Susan Butcher and Jerry Austin. That sparked his original interest in the Iditarod and he began thinking seriously about the Iditarod after a couple of competitive finishes in the Femundløpet and the Finmarksløpet in the 90's. He has finished the Femundløpet nine times and the Finmarksløpet three times. He maintains a kennel of 30 dogs in Norway, but is running a team from Dallas Seavey's kennel in the Iditarod this year. When not mushing dogs, Geir is a competitive Norwegian folk dancer. He is the father of Mår, age 13. He is a member of the Femund Trekhund Klubb and Roros Folkdanislag. He lists his hobbies as Rorospols (Norwegian folk dancing), knife making and wood working.

Tom Jamgochian – Nome, AK

Website: www.couchdogkennel.com

Tom Jamgochian, 38, is an Assistant District Attorney and musher living in Nome. He obtained his first sled dogs in 2011 a couple weeks after getting married. His wedding vows included a cap of 13 dogs. He now owns 17 sled dogs and yet is still married.

Born and raised in San Francisco, Tom moved to Anchorage in 2004 for what he thought was a one year legal job, after which he intended to start a normal life as a San Francisco lawyer. But, as has been known to happen, he never left. Since then, he's moved to Bethel, Fairbanks and Nome. He also married an Alaskan so he will be here for the long haul. Tom loves 8 month long winters, being out on the trail all day and on the couch with 1 or 4 sled dogs at night. He has completed the Copper Basin 300, Northern Lights 300, Knik 200 and Nome-Council 200, where he came in first place in 2015.

Tom and his wife live with their dogs 15 miles north of Nome on the banks of the Nome River. Their kennel is named Couch Dog Kennel.

Scott Janssen, the “Mushing Mortician,” 54, was born and raised in Crookston, Minnesota. He married his high school sweetheart, Debbie, in 1980. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1985 with a B.S. degree with a major in Mortuary Science. Scott and Debbie moved to Alaska in June of that year for Scott to work as a funeral director at Evergreen Memorial Chapel. He has been a mortician and funeral home owner for the last 29 years. They now, along with their friend, Jordan Eastman, own five funeral homes in Anchorage, Eagle River and Wasilla, including, Evergreen, as well as Alaska Cremation Center and Eagle River Funeral Home under the name of Janssen Funeral Homes. Scott has been a friend and sponsor of Paul Gebhardt for 15 years and began mushing in 2007. He says, “Paul got me hooked!” He finished the Iditarod in 2011 with a team of Gebhardt dogs and in 2012; he had a blend of his own dogs and dogs from 1984 champion, Dean Osmar. His 2012 race went national when the story of the mouth to snout resuscitation of his dog, Marshall, was on Diane Sawyer’s World News Tonight, during the 2012 Race. Marshall fully recovered and is retired, living in the house with “full benefits” befitting an Iditarod veteran. He says “Iditarod has been his dream since 1986.” He and his wife of thirty years, Debbie, are the parents of two adult daughters, Angela and Chelsea. Their godson, Jaikob Stahnke, 10, is like a son to them, and they are proud grandparents of infant, Avalyn. Scott is a member of National Funeral Directors Association, Alaska Funeral Directors Association, Arch Diocese of Anchorage, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis, Harley Owners Group and the Iditarod Official Finishers Club. He says he enjoys anything outdoors, including landscaping, hiking, hunting, fishing, ridin’ Harleys, and skiing on both water and snow.

DeeDee Jonrowe, 62, was born in Frankfort, Germany, while her father was in the military. The family moved to Alaska in 1971 where her dad was stationed at Ft. Richardson. DeeDee has a B.S. degree in Biological Sciences and Renewable Resources and now lists her occupation as kennel owner and dog racer. She began mushing in 1979 when she was living in Bethel and her mother was excited about volunteering in the early Iditarod races. She says, "This will be my 34th Iditarod start, 16 finishes in the top

10. My competitors have become my family; sometimes dysfunctional, but still I love them dearly. As I have lost most of my immediate family and all my worldly belongings except my dogs, along with my close neighbors, I have seen the very best in hearts of Iditarod fans, volunteers and competitors, all of whom have reached out to support each of us. This race for me has always been about the passion for my dogs and culture of the Alaskans in the rural areas. Now it has once again expanded to my being reminded how very good people are. And that, faced with the choice of all my material belongings or my dogs, my first reflex was to save my dogs. God gave me that privilege. I lost everything else. Only relationships really last." DeeDee is a member of the Big Lake Baptist Church, the Willow Running Club and the State Veterinarian Licensing Board. She says her hobbies and interests include “training Labrador Retrievers, Pekingese Rescue, Quality of Life opportunities particularly for senior citizens, hiking and trail running in back country and the history of early Alaska during territorial days.” DeeDee is married to Mike, secretary of the Iditarod’s Board of Directors.

Katherine Keith – Kotzebue, AK

Website: www.katherinekeith.com

Katherine, 37, was born in Minnesota and lived there until completing high school at which point Katherine decided that it was time to pursue her dream of going to Alaska. She graduated from the University of Alaska, Fairbanks in 2008 with a degree in Renewable Energy Engineering. She had always dreamed of flying a bush plane, eating caribou, running dogs, and having a camp in the Brooks Range. She went to Kotzebue to handle dogs and has lived there off and on ever since. Katherine began racing dogs in 2011 and soon realized that Iditarod was on the horizon. So she began competing in the races she needed to qualify for the 2014 Iditarod.

Katherine and John Baker raise and train over 50 dogs in Kotzebue, Alaska as they focus on having the best dog kennel in the world. Katherine and John also own a number of small businesses including Remote Solutions, LLC which allows them to professionally help meet the needs of rural Alaska. Katherine is an Ironman Triathlete and hopes to soon qualify for the Ironman World Championship in Kona, Hawaii. She is also a proud parent of Amelia who is 13 years old.

Jeff King – Denali Park, AK
 Website: www.huskyhomestead.com

Jeff King, 59, was born in California. He came to Alaska in 1975 to "seek adventure." He began mushing in 1976 after he heard Jerry Riley's race finish while listening to the radio. Jeff has an outstanding race record, including a Yukon Quest victory in 1981 and four Iditarod victories. He has three adult daughters, Cali, Tessa and Ellen. All the girls have run the Jr. Iditarod, and Cali finished the Iditarod. He says his hobby is "ping pong."

Martin Koenig – Seeley Lake, MT

Website: None

Martin Koenig, 64, was born and raised in Switzerland. He moved to the United States in 1973 and became a US citizen in 1978. He settled in Montana in 1980 after arriving on horseback from Colorado. He has been a self-employed machinist for 45 years. He says, "I traded horses for sled dogs in 1992 and started sprint racing." He moved on to stage, mid-distance and distance racing. "I quit the race circuit two years ago and turned into a recreational musher. I don't miss the race scene but I do miss traveling with the dogs and running new trails. I decided it was time for another trip to Alaska and to take the dogs to Nome. I have 28 dogs in my kennel, and 20 are in training for Iditarod. They are all rookies except one. Should be interesting. I do like a good challenge." Martin is a member of the Montana Mountain Mushers and when asked about hobbies, he says, "no time for anything else."

Jim Lanier (La Near')– Chugiak, AK

Website: northernwhites.com

Jim Lanier, 75, was born in Washington, DC and raised in Fargo, North Dakota, where his family moved when he was six years old. After receiving his medical degree from Washington University in St. Louis, he moved to Alaska in 1967 to serve at the Native Hospital with the US Public Health Service. A pathologist at Providence Hospital for thirty-some years, Jim is now retired from medicine, but not from mushing. He “went to the dogs” in the 70’s, as a result of hanging around with Iditarod mushers Ron Gould, Dinah Knight and Gerry Riley. Then in 1979, he ran his first Iditarod, as chronicled in his book, Beyond

Ophir. In 2014, he entered his seventeenth Iditarod, and, for the first time, had to scratch due to a ruptured Achilles tendon. Came 2015, and Jim was determined to make it to Nome, but determination ran into pneumonia, bringing him to his knees in Unalakleet, and forcing another scratch. Apparently Jim's determination, or stubbornness, knows no bounds as he returns to the starting line for another go. After that, "Who knows", he says. "Health aside, it's a matter of continued enjoyment of the dreaming, planning, scheming, training, support of family and friends, and of going head-to-head with people half my age and younger." His specialty is his white dogs and therefore, his "Northern Whites Kennel." Jim is married to Anna Bondarenko, first Russian woman to enter and complete "The Last Great Race on Earth" in 2000. He is the father of four (Margaret, 47, Kim, 46, Willy, 37 and Jimmy, 18) and also the grandfather of five (Annie, Ethan, Ollie, Logan and Jessie.) His hobbies include singing, hunting, commercial fishing, cabin building, reading, writing....and raising kids.

Joar Leifseth Ulsom (U are' Life'seth Ool'some) – Mo I Rana, NORWAY

Website: <http://www.RacingBeringia.com>

Clocking the 5th fastest time ever run in the 2014 Iditarod race, Joar Leifseth Ulsom (29) holds the record as the fastest rookie to have ever run the Iditarod, while placing seventh in 2013. Joar is one of only two mushers to place top-7 three times in just three Iditarod starts.

The 2013 Iditarod Rookie of the Year is from Mo I Rana in Norway by the Arctic Circle. Joar traveled with his dogs from Norway to Alaska where they currently reside since fall of 2011. He works full-time with his small kennel of dogs and Russian team mates for the GoNorth! Adventure Learning non-profit as part of Team Racing Beringia.

Racing Beringia is an online education program for students in K-12 classrooms around the world to explore the region of Beringia spanning from the Yukon in Canada, across Alaska to Chukotka, Russia (RacingBeringia.com).

Joar and his team have raced throughout Beringia starting with the Yukon Quest in 2012. Setting a new time record for the Nadezhda Hope race in Chukotka (Russia), Joar became the first non-native winner of the "toughest race in Eurasia" in 20 years. He is now a 2-time Nadezhda Hope champion, with a second victory in 2014. Joar and his team also placed 1st in 2012 Chukotka Sprint Championship.

Back in Norway Joar started out as a kid by borrowing his neighbors two housedogs to pull him around on skis. Watching Iditarod movies is what fueled his dreams growing up. In 2007 Joar started mushing and building up his own team. He got a degree from an agricultural college and worked as a cowboy while he ran the great races of Scandinavia before coming to Alaska. With this fourth Iditarod, the run for Racing Beringia continues in 2016.

Jason Mackey – Wasilla, AK

Website: None

Jason Mackey, 44, was born in Alaska and raised in the Mat Valley and at Coldfoot. He says he’s been mushing “since I was big enough to hold onto the sled.” His mushing career began when he started running junior races back in 1983. After four Jr. Iditarod’s and four Jr. World Championships, he went into distance mushing. The first Iditarod he remembers was the 1978 Race. “Dad won in 1978.” Jason says, “I grew up with sled dogs. It’s what I know and what I love! We have bred up a proven line of dogs that have won more long distance races than any other lines. We are going to continue breeding and racing as long as we can. This year’s team consists of Mackey, Osmar and Seavey bloodlines. It’s what’s working for us. A recent move to the Interior has been great for some of the best training in North America. My wife and I purchased four acres and our son, Patrick, purchased an acre north of Fairbanks so our kennels are close, and Patrick and I do most all of our training together... we love it here.” Jason is married to Lisa and they are the parents of Patrick, 24 and Jason, 22. Jason has been a heavy equipment operator for “all of my adult life.” He says he enjoys fishing and berry picking, and my new one, “The beach in Jacksonville, Florida.”

Lance Mackey, 45, was born and raised in Alaska. He says he’s been racing since birth, from sprint to distance. “I love the dogs and traveling across this state and am looking forward to improving on my 2015 performance.” He is a four-time back to back Iditarod champion, and a four time Yukon Quest champion. He’s also run the Kusko 300, the Kobuk 440 and lots of other races. He says he is still in the “school of hard knocks.” A member of Mush with Pride, the Iditarod Trail Committee, and is a Yukon Quest Board member, Lance says his hobby is “racing my ’71 Legends race car.”

Kelly Maixner – Big Lake, AK
 Website: madstorkkennel.com

Kelly Maixner, 40, was born and raised in North Dakota. After graduating from Montana State University he went to dental school at Nova Southeastern in Ft. Lauderdale, where he received his dental degree. Kelly moved to Alaska in 2007 for a pediatric dental residency. Being a man who always seeks out challenges, he immediately set his sights on running the Iditarod. He started Mad Stork Kennel, LLC with two pregnant females and it has grown to around 60. Before Kelly decided to become a pediatric dentist, he was a farmer, a snowboard instructor, a soldier in the National Guard, a bartender, a doughnut-maker, a physical therapy assistant for the Phoenix Suns, a state champion boxer, and a semi-professional football player for the Bozeman Kodiaks. An avid runner and competitor, Kelly has completed multiple marathons and triathlons, including the Silverman competition. He hopes, someday, to finish the Iditarod, climb Mt. McKinley, and race the Boston Marathon in the same year. Every year Kelly takes his professional skills to Haiti to provide dental care for the children of Kobonal Mission. Kelly's wife, Margaret, found him in 2009 and they were married the following year. They are the parents of Rosemary, 4, and Vendelin, 2, and an infant, Bernadette. He is a member of the American Dental Association and the America Academy of Pediatric Dentistry.

Wade MARRS, 25, was born and raised in the Knik area outside of Wasilla, Alaska. “I have been mushing dogs since I was a young boy. My uncle had a team of his own and showed me the ropes. When he passed away, I took over running the dogs. I enjoy mushing because of the awesome bond I have with my dogs, the time alone with them on the trail and the sights we get to see together. We are always looking for ways to improve our finishing position and look forward to someday winning the Iditarod.” In 2014, he moved to Willow for better training opportunities and to expand his growing kennel. When he is not mushing, Wade enjoys hunting, fishing, competing in running races and relaxing at home.

Lars MONSEN – Skiptvet, NORWAY

Website: www.larsmosen.no

Lars MONSEN, 52, was born in Oslo, Norway. He grew up partly in Oslo and partly in Beiarin in the northern part of Norway. He moved to Skiptvet in 2010. Lars began mushing in 1990 and became interested in running the Iditarod when his friends, Robert Sørлие, Harald Tunheim and Stein Håvard Fjestad first came to Alaska to run Iditarod.

Since 2006, he has completed the Femundløpet 600 eight times and the Finnmarksløpet 1000 five times. He worked as a teacher until 1991, and then he dedicated all his time to being an adventurer and author. Lars has written 18 books and been on many expeditions. His books are about his travels in the wilderness in Alaska, Canada and Norway. Some of his many expeditions have been quite long trips: Crossing Alaska in 10 months, the length of Norway in a year, crossing Canada in three years. Some shorter expeditions are hiking across Kodiak Island and Admiralty Island, by canoe down the Savonovski (Katmai) and Togiak Rivers and one month and 600 km by canoe in Quebec. Lars has also made movies of some of these expeditions, and they have been shown on NRK (Norwegian National Television) several times. Lars lists his hobbies as chess, adventures, expeditions, making TV and writing books.

Allen Moore – Two Rivers, AK

Website: SPKDogLog.com

Allen Moore, 58, was born and raised in Northeast Arkansas where he received a degree in Biology from Arkansas State University. He worked as a carpenter and taxidermist there before moving to Alaska over 20 years ago. He says it was too hot in Arkansas so he drove with his family to Alaska. He began mushing about twenty years ago and had competed in sprint races and in many mid distance races around the State before he ran his first Iditarod in 2007. "I race the Yukon Quest in February and then when the first weekend in March arrives, our kennel clears out because we try to race ALL of our dogs in the Iditarod. My goal is to have a group of young SP Kennel dogs become an educated, working dog team by the end of the Iditarod. The goal is to finish the Race with as many strong dogs as possible, so they will be prepared for future years of racing competitively. After a young dog crosses the finish line in Nome, it is mentally 'unstoppable'. It's a great thing to witness in these youngsters. I might not have the fastest time to Nome, but it is one of the most rewarding!" Allen lives in Two rivers, Alaska with his wife Aliy Zirkle, also an Iditarod veteran and competitor in 2016. He enjoys fishing, hunting and playing with grand kids. Allen has two adult children, Bridget and Jennifer.

Becca Moore – Willow, AK

Website: www.homestretchkennel.com

Becca Moore, 44, was born in Heidelberg, Germany and raised in Berlin. She went to Colorado State University where she earned a B.S. in Natural Resource Management in 1997. After graduation, she worked for the Army Corps of Engineers in Washington. She started coming to Alaska in 1999 and worked for the Sitka Ranger District. She has been self-employed for the last eight years. She began mushing in 2000, and while working as a handler in 2003, she started thinking about running Iditarod. She finished the Yukon Quest in 2009. Becca says, "I've always enjoyed adventure. During high school I loved kayaking, backpacking, and back country skiing with friends. During college I spent my free time telemarking, snowboarding, and racing bikes. After college, my work with the Forest Service, NOAA and HDR took me to many remote and exciting places in Alaska. Now, the adventure continues with my husband, kids and 49 dogs living off-grid on a homestead parcel in our solar powered home. Our kids, Ava, 8 and Banyan, 4, are completely involved with all aspects of the kennel, from taking care of puppies, to hopping in the sled to go on a long run with us, to running their own races! One of my personal interests is promoting healthy activities for kids. It is of the utmost importance that kids get exercise and healthy foods! I will be volunteering with outdoor activity groups for kids, sharing my experiences with young people at the children's hospitals and mentoring kids to pursue sports and healthy choices. I'm looking forward to sharing the adventures of Iditarod with my amazing sled dogs. There will be some hardened veterans, young dogs and dogs new to our kennel in the training line-up. Ava and Banyan will be hard at work helping to raise our puppies! I'm thankful for my family, friends and sponsors that make it possible for me to race this year!" Becca says she enjoys skiing and cycling in her spare time.

"I grew up in Willow, AK, surrounded by dogs and loving winter," says 28 year old Lisbet Norris. "After high school, I moved to Fairbanks to attend university. At UAF, I cultivated a love for the North. I studied in Norway and Baffin Island and worked as a musher and expedition guide. I received my BA in Northern Studies and History from UAF in 2011 and decided then to pursue a long-held dream: distance mushing. I returned to Northern Norway that summer and spent the fall and winter training and racing dogs in the Alta area. In 2012, I came back to Alaska convinced that dog life was the life for me. Distance musher offers what I love most:: time in nature and time with dogs. In 2014, I completed my rookie Iditarod with a team of Siberian Huskies from the family kennel: Alaskan Kennels, the oldest Siberian husky kennel in the world. I am excited to again field a team of AKC registered Siberian Huskies in the 2016 Iditarod. Thanks & love to my many friends and supporters." Ryne Olson – Two Rivers, AK

Website: www.rynokennel.com

Ryne Olson, 27, was raised in Durango, Colorado. Five years ago, she moved to Alaska to pursue dog mushing at SP Kennels. She worked with Aliy Zirkle and Allen Moore and in 2012, ran a team for SP Kennels in the Iditarod. It was then that she knew what she wanted to do for the rest of her life. With the help of SP Kennels, she started to build her own kennel, Ryno Sled Dog Kennel, in the summer of 2012. Since then the kennel has grown to "25 incredible athletes." She ran the 2015 Yukon Quest, and now says, "We've signed up for the 2016 Iditarod to teach the team the trail and have a wonderful wilderness experience." Having left college to come to Alaska, she went back to college to complete her degree with a Bachelor of Accounting at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks in 2012. Currently, she is a professional dog musher and a staff accountant. She says she enjoys hiking, skiing, backpacking, hunting and fishing.

Miriam moved to Alaska in 2011 to pursue her dream of running dogs. In her spare time, she enjoys hiking, kayaking and singing.

Kristin Knight Pace – Denali Park, AK

Website: www.hey Moose kennel.com

Kristin, 32, was born and raised in Ft. Worth, Texas. She graduated with honors from the University of Montana with a degree in photojournalism. She lived in Montana where she worked for a while for the local newspaper and then worked for the Forest Service there. She came to Alaska in 2009 to take care of a cabin and recreational team for a friend. She soon married Andy and became the lead back country ranger for Denali. While handling for four time Iditarod champion, Jeff King, Andy and Kristin started their kennel in 2011. They bought four puppies from Jeff King and 10 acres of raw land outside Healy. Then they began to work hard toward their dream of running a thousand mile race. In 2012, they trained Brent Sass's yearling team and at the end of the season, they split the rookies with Sass. They also did a breeding with Michael Williams, Jr.'s team and that rounded out their kennel with "three amazing bloodlines." "Now, five years later, we have 27 dogs. Last year, we achieved our goal of running 1,000 miles by finishing 15th in the Yukon Quest with a strong 12 dog team. We can't wait to see the beautiful Iditarod trail. After all, there's no better way to see and experience the country than on the back of a dog sled." Kristin is currently a wilderness planner for the National Park Service. She says she enjoys writing, backpacking, exploring wilderness and playing music.

Tim Pappas – Big Lake, AK

Website: none

Tim Pappas, 26, was born and raised on the East coast and after high school, he moved to Wyoming, where he worked as a hunting guide and guided wilderness pack trips in the summer and was a ski patroller in the winter. He moved from there to Juneau where he ran dog sled tours on the Mendenhall Glacier. He moved to Big Lake in 2013 to "further my knowledge of sled dogs after running dog sled tours in Wyoming." While in Wyoming, he says he formed a deep respect and love for the wilderness and the bond between man and beast. He moved to Big Lake to apprentice under four time Iditarod champion, Martin Buser and will be running a "phenomenal team of yearlings." His hobbies are playing music, hunting fishing, climbing, snowboarding and COFFEE!

Noah Pereira – Brockport, NY

Website: None

Noah Pereira, 19, was born and raised in Brockport, New York. Growing up, he met local mushers and was amazed after talking to them. He began mushing in 2009. He and his dad came to Alaska in winters of '13, '14 and 15 to train dogs. In 2013 he became the first non-Alaskan musher to win the Jr. Iditarod. His team is made up of dogs from New York and some younger ones from Alaska. He says, "My goal for this race is to finish with a happy and healthy dog team." When he is not mushing, he likes archery, hunting and fishing.

Nicolas Petit (Pe' ti) – Girdwood, AK
 Website: TeamPetit.com

Nicolas Petit, 36, grew up in Normandy and always loved animals. Nick got into mushing by adopting "Ugly", a gorgeous Alaskan Mutt. He put a harness on him and then the adventure began. Nick developed his passion for sled dogs, while living in Girdwood, Alaska, and working for Dario Daniels, whose training techniques live on through Nick's calm mushing demeanor. Nick has placed 28th, 29th, 6th and 10th in past Iditarods and 31st, 4th and 2nd in the Copper Basin. He won the 2014 Aurora 50/50. He says, "The future looks bright for my dog team." He is proud to finally run his own dogs. His team consists of eight yearlings that he raised and a few experienced dogs that have been with him a couple of years.

Mats Pettersson – Kiruna, SWEDEN
 Website: sleddog.se

Mats Pettersson, 45, was born and raised in Kiruna, Sweden. He began mushing in 2000, after visiting Goose Lake Kennel and buying a female sled dog, Shasta, from Jeff King. Later, he went back and bought an "awesome" sled dog, Rhumba. This was the start of his kennel and the breeding program for the kennel. He has run the Finnmarksløpet in Norway five times and also the Femundløpet, and the Amundsen races. He is the Swedish champion in long distance mushing. He has been in the tourism business in Sweden 33 years and currently runs a tourism business just 20 km away from the world famous Ice Hotel in Sweden, Kiruna Sleddog Tours. This will be his third Iditarod. He says he loves the Nature and people of Alaska and he loves to spend the winter here with his family. He and his wife, Charlotta, are the parents of Linnea, 20, Clara, 18, Tolda, 16 and Zeb, 5 and Freja, 1. He is a member of Kiruna Slådhundsklubb and says he enjoys music, sports and his children. He's also been a "half professional" ice hockey player as a goalie.

Michelle Phillips – Carcross, YT CANADA

Website: www.tagishlakekennel.com

Michelle Phillips, 47, was born and raised in Whitehorse, YT. “After traveling the world for 10 years, I decided to settle down in a small cabin in the Yukon Bush. After living for a few years in the Southern Lakes region of the Yukon, I met my partner, Ed Hopkins. Ed introduced the sport of dog mushing to me and I immediately fell in love with the sport. Growing up in a very athletic family and training for many years as a figure skater, I enjoyed challenging myself and working with such an elite and talented group of athletes. After running my first Yukon Quest, I was hooked on long distance mushing and I’ve been doing it since. I love traveling with my team of dogs and spending time with my best friends.” She and Ed own and operate Tagish Lake Kennel. Michelle has run six Yukon Quest races (best finish 4th and Vet’s Choice award in 2009.) For the past 17 years, when not racing professionally, Ed and Michelle, with their son Keegan, 15, (and up to 90 Alaskan huskies) have provided visitors with sled dog adventures of 30 minutes to seven days throughout the year.

Robert Redington, 27, was born and raised in the Knik area outside Wasilla. He says he’s lived on his grandfather’s (Joe Redington, Sr.) homestead all his life. He started mushing five years ago and says he had a feeling he would run the Iditarod since he was a kid. In the summers, he does tours at Alaska Excursions Dog Sled Discovery and Musher’s Camp in the Juneau area. He is the grandson of Iditarod co-founder Joe Redington, Sr. and a brother to Ryan and Ray Redington. All three Redington men have entered the 2016 Iditarod. Robert enjoys skateboarding in his spare time.

Ryan Redington -- Wasilla, AK

Website: <http://callintraillkennel.com>

Ryan Redington, 33, was born and raised in the Knik area outside Wasilla. He says he began mushing when he could walk. “I was born to race Iditarod,” said Ryan. He last finished the Iditarod in 2009 and has done “every style of racing, from Fur Rondy, stage racing to the Iditarod.” He and his two brothers, Robert and Ray are the sons of Iditarod veteran, Raymie Redington and grandsons of Joe Redington, Sr. and all three are racing the Iditarod this year. Ryan is married to Erin and they are the parents of two. Raynee is 13 and Eve Violet is a year old. Ryan says he enjoys trapping and hunting.

Mike Santos – Cantwell, AK
 Website: www.wolfsdenkennel.com

Mike Santos, 47, was born in Massachusetts, but says that he was born Alaskan in the wrong state. Mike started working with sled dogs in New England, before he even knew that the Iditarod race existed. Mike has always been fascinated by dogs, particularly the athleticism of sled dogs. After years of learning from dogs in New England, Mike and his wife Caitlin moved to Alaska in 2005 in search of longer trails, deeper snow, and the chance to run the Iditarod.

Mike and Caitlin settled in Cantwell, Alaska, just outside Denali National Park. This remote village has about 150 year round residents. Mike has worked hard at raising and training the dogs, and more recently, raising and training their 1 year old son Max. Caitlin teaches at the local school. Mike and Caitlin have worked to restore their Alaskan homestead. They spent their first year living in the dog barn, which had a gravel floor, and finally got running water in the spring of 2014.

Sled dogs captivate the imagination of the world and it is really fun to know that you are excited about dogs and the Iditarod. Mike invites you to meet his dogs on his website, to watch them in action on the WolfsDenKennel channel on YouTube, and to visit them in person at DogGoneIt Tours.

Brent Sass – Eureka, AK

Website: wildandfreealaska.com

Brent Sass, 36, owner and founder of Wild and Free Mushing, has been racing and training huskies for 13 years. Originally from Excelsior, Minnesota, Sass moved to Alaska in 1998 to “fulfill a lifelong dream of living in Alaska.” He’s been following his dreams ever since. After attending UAF for 4 years and graduating with a major in Geography, he started building log cabins and started his own building and rental cabin business in at the Goldstream Valley outside of Fairbanks. In 2011 he bought a homestead in Eureka, Alaska and has been breeding, raising and training dogs and living a remote wilderness lifestyle ever since. Since his first race in 2006, Sass has placed in over 20 races, including several first place finishes. He has run the 1000 mile Yukon Quest nine times and won the race in 2015. He was the Rookie of the Year in the 2012 Iditarod and is eager to be back on the trail and to the finish line in 2016. Brent’s entire team will be dogs that he has bred, raised and trained their entire life. He has an amazing bond with his dogs and feels that his remote mushing lifestyle will put him in contention to win the race in 2016. Brent lists his occupation as professional dog musher/guide and his hobbies as wilderness travel, hunting and axe throwing.

Justin Savidis – Willow, AK
Website: snowhookkennel.com

In 2004, Justin (AJ), 41, and his wife, Rebecca, packed their worldly belongings into a truck and a trailer, complete with a rocking chair strapped to the top, and moved to Willow, Alaska to follow a job offer, and more importantly, to chase down a dream of running dogs. It was a quick journey from having a couple of dogs and handling for other mushers to establishing a kennel of their own, and then setting the goal to prepare for and race in the Iditarod. Today, they operate Snowhook Kennel comprised of 40+ dogs—some are rescues, some procured from other mushers, and others are a result of the Snowhook Kennel recipe. Growing up in Southeast Idaho, Justin has always sought out adventure including mountaineering and whitewater kayaking. Mushing and the Iditarod are a natural fit for Justin’s sense of and need for adventure—he and the dogs live for pulling the snow hook! Justin’s racing career includes the Rich Allen ‘For Love of Dogs’ award for exceptional dog care and a 5th place finish in the 2013 Northern Lights 300, a 1st place finish in the 2012 Don Bowers Memorial Sled Dog Race, and a 1st place finish and receiving the Humanitarian Award in the 2011 Don Bowers Memorial Sled Dog Race—the awards for dog care are by far the bigger honors. Justin earned his degree in Parks, Recreation, and Tourism with an emphasis on experiential education from the University of Utah in 2002. Driven to help others, his career path has been focused on working with youth at risk. In addition to running dogs, Justin enjoys kayaking, climbing, languages and reading.

Billy Snodgrass – Dubois, WY

Website: www.distancedogfood.com

Billy Snodgrass, 59, was born and raised on a ranch in central Wyoming. He is a fourth generation Wyoming cowboy. Billy has spent the last 10 years outfitting and dog mushing in the mountains of Dubios. He says, "I run the Iditarod for the adventure." He lives with his horses and 140 sled dogs and owns the Distance Dog Food Company and Continental Dog Sled Adventures. He began mushing in 1981 and used dog teams to get into his ranch. He says he wanted to run Iditarod ever since he first started mushing. He has finished the Iditarod four times and competed in many mid-distance races. He has three grandchildren and says he loves tennis and a "good beach." His life motto is, "It's a great day to be alive—if you don't think so, you're going to have to leave—because you'll only bring the rest of us down."

Melissa (Owens) Stewart) – Wasilla, AK

Website: None

Melissa (Owens) Stewart, 26, was born and raised in Nome. She moved to the Mat-Su Valley in 2009 to attend Northern Industrial Training and decided to stay. She later earned a Bachelor’s Degree in Criminal Justice from the Charter College. Melissa lists her occupation as dog musher and says she has been mushing “since birth.” She says she has wanted to run the Iditarod as long as she can remember. “My dad ran the Iditarod the year I was born and mushing is in my blood. After completing four Jr. Iditarods, I ran my first Iditarod in 2008 and am the youngest female to finish the Iditarod. After taking a few years off, we have decided it is time to come back and run again and show the dogs what it is like to race across Alaska. My husband, Jason, and I now share the responsibilities of the kennel and enjoy spending time with the dogs and seeing them grow as a team. We are excited for this winter.”

Ed Stielstra – McMillan, MI

Website:www.natureskennel.com

Ed, 46, grew up in Ludington, Michigan enjoying competitive sports, dogs and being outside. After high school, he attended Michigan State University where he received a Bachelor of Science from Lyman Briggs College of Science. Approximately 13 years ago, Ed and his wife left their “real world” jobs to operate Nature’s Kennel Sled Dog Adventures and Racing full time. Their kennel is located in Michigan’s beautiful Upper Peninsula, and they offer dog sled adventures geared toward the beginner.

Along with tours and racing, Ed and Tasha combine their mushing experience with their past teaching experience to do presentations for students in kindergarten through 8th grade around the US and abroad. Their “Pulling Together” presentations focus on teamwork and respect from a sled dog’s viewpoint.

Ed says he ran his first Iditarod in 2004 because, “Basically I got tired of answering the question, ‘have you ever run the Iditarod.’”

When not training dogs and entertaining guests, Ed spends his free time with his two children, Nate, 5, and Fern, 3.

Sarah Stokey – Seward, AK

Website: www.TurningHeadsKennel.com

Sarah Stokey, 27, was born and raised in Massachusetts. She received her BA from Northeastern University in Sociology. She moved to Seward in 2010 “to pursue a dream of running dogs.” She had wanted to run the Iditarod since she was six and saw the movie, Iron Will. In 2011, she met Travis Beals, and they began running dogs together. She enjoys writing, fishing and hiking.

Cody Strathe – Fairbanks, AK

Website: www.squidacres.com

Cody Strathe, 38, was born and raised in Iowa and Wisconsin. He received a BS in Natural Resource Management from the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point, in 2001. He first came to Alaska in 2001 as a canoe and backcountry guide. He moved to Fairbanks to go to graduate school for archaeology, where he graduated with a masters in anthropology in 2009. He fell in love with mushing after moving to Fairbanks. He has been working as a sled builder and archeologist for the last 10 years. Cody says, “I am happiest in the outdoors exploring. Dogs have made the journey even more amazing. Racing to win is not the main goal of Squid Acres race program. Our dogs’ health and happiness is our number one priority. Winning with a happy healthy team is possible and is our goal.”

This will be Cody’s rookie year in the Iditarod, but he has completed the Yukon Quest and other mid distance races in Alaska. He began mushing in 2007 and says, “I first became interested in running the Iditarod when I realized I had an awesome team of dogs. They deserve to show what they are made of.”

Cody is married to Paige Drobny, a veteran of the last two Iditarod races.

Michael Williams, Jr. – Akiak, AK

Website: None

Michael Williams, Jr., 31, was born and raised in Akiak, Alaska. He says, “I have been involved with mushing since birth and have trained and raced dogs ever since I can remember. My dad has been racing the Kusko 300 and the Iditarod for many years and I helped train his team while he was attending meetings.” He graduated from Galena High School and attended AVTEC for one year. He is married to Phyllis Charlie and they are the parents of three, Patton, Daniel and Kohl. Michael says he enjoys hunting and fishing in his spare time.

Monica Zappa – Kasimov, AK
 Website: www.teamzappa.com

Monica Zappa, 32, was born and raised in Cumberland, Wisconsin. She holds a bachelor’s degree in Meteorology and a master’s in Geography from the University of Oklahoma. She has also completed one year of a PhD program in Geography. While attending school she worked at the National Weather Center there. She moved to Kasilof in the spring of 2010, to run dogs and work as a handler for Bruce Linton. Then she says, “Tim Osmar talked me into living and working with him in the fall of 2010 and I haven’t left.” Her main occupation is commercial fishing, but she does a lot of other things to pay the bills. Her latest venture is making Mending Twine Bracelets. She hopes to sell them this season to help afford Iditarod; they can be purchased on her webpage. Monica grew up in a mushing family. Both her parents competed in and officiated the John Beargrease Sled Dog Marathon. She explained that her dad’s dream was to run the Iditarod but he died before it happened. Monica and Tim have been “Mushing to Save Bristol Bay” since 2012 and join their dogs in always standing up for the wild salmon when foreign mining giants threaten them.

Aliy Zirkle, 46, was born in New Hampshire. She spent her childhood in New Hampshire, Puerto Rico, and Missouri. She graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with a degree in Biology and Anthropology and came to Alaska in 1990, where she lived in a wall tent on the Alaskan Peninsula and worked for the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. She’s lived in Two Rivers for the last 18 years and says she “enjoys the community and the surrounding wild lands.” Aliy lists her occupation as “dog musher” and has finished the Iditarod 15 times. “Iditarod is my passion, my job, my life...Alaskan husky sled dogs are the focus of my life. We breed, raise and train the best individual dogs we possibly can at SP Kennel in Two Rivers. I began mushing dogs over 20 years ago because I enjoyed dogs. I still do. We have some of the most talented, fun-loving, dedicated sled dogs in the world so racing them on the largest stage in the world –the Iditarod—seems only fitting!” Aliy has two adult step daughters, Bridgett and Jennifer. When asked what she enjoys, she says “exploring Alaska and drinking good coffee.”

FAMOUS MUSHERS ASSOCIATED WITH THE IDITAROD

Joe Redington, Sr. – Co-founder and affectionately known as the “Father of the Iditarod.”

Rick Swenson – The only five-time champion, only champion to win in three different decades and the only musher to have completed 30 Iditarods.

Col. Norman D Vaughan – Finished the race for the fourth time in 1988 at the age of 88 and led an expedition to Antarctica in the winter of 1993-’94.

Susan Butcher – The first woman to ever place in the top ten and the first four-time winner.

Libby Riddles – In 1985, the first woman to win the Iditarod.

Emmitt Peters – Set a race record in 1975 that wasn’t broken until 1980, known as the Yukon River Fox.

Rick Mackey – Wearing bib number 13, the same number his father wore in 1978, crossed the finish line first in 1983, making Dick and Rick the only father and son to have won the Iditarod.

Joe Runyan – 1989 champion and the only musher to have won the Alpinrod in Europe, the Yukon Quest and the Iditarod.

Terry Adkins – Retired from the United States Air Force, the only veterinarian on the first Iditarod in 1973 and now one of only eight mushers to have completed at least 18 Iditarods.

Doug Swingley – The first Iditarod winner living outside Alaska and the second four-time winner.

Martin Buser – A four-time winner who holds the record winning time and was the first musher to break the nine-day barrier.

Herbie Nayokpuk – The Eskimo from Shishmaref, the “Shishmaref Cannonball” who raced in eleven Iditarods.

DeeDee Jonrowe, Charlie Boulding, and Lance Mackey – All came back to race again after life-threatening bouts with cancer.

Robert Sørli – First musher from out of the United States (Norway) to win the Iditarod.

Lance Mackey – Won the 2007 Iditarod after winning the Yukon Quest only 10 days earlier. He was the first musher to have won both races in the same year and made Dick Mackey the only father to have won the Iditarod and to have two sons also win the Iditarod, all wearing bib number 13. Lance Mackey repeated his feat of winning both the Yukon Quest and Iditarod in 2008. Lance is the first musher to ever win four consecutive Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Races in a row (2007, 2008, 2009, 2010).

John Baker – First Eskimo to win the Iditarod and also set fastest winning time of eight days, 18 hours, 46 minutes and 39 seconds in 2011.

Dan Seavey – 1973 Inaugural musher who ran again in 2012 to celebrate the 100 anniversary of the Iditarod Trail, he is father of Mitch and grandfather of Dallas.

Dallas Seavey – 2012, 2014 and 2015 champion, the youngest Iditarod winner in all three years.

Mitch Seavey – 2013 champion, the oldest musher to ever win the Iditarod as of 2013.

DICTIONARY OF MUSHING TERMINOLOGY

- Gee - Command for right turn
- Haw - Command for left turn
- Come Gee! Come Haw! - Commands for 180-degree turns in either direction
- Line Out! - Command to lead dog to pull the team out straight from the sled. Used mostly while hooking dogs into team or unhooking them
- Mush! Hike! All Right! Let's Go! - Commands to start the team
- Whoa! - Command used to half the team, accompanied by heavy pressure on the brake

NOTE: Teams are directed through spoken orders. The leader of the team must understand all that is said and guide the others accordingly. An intelligent leader is an absolute necessity. At times it appears that there is E.S.P. between musher and the leader.

Mushing Vocabulary:

- Alaskan Husky-“Breed” generally used as sled dog. Not recognized by the American Kennel Club.
- Booties - Type of sock made to protect dogs' feet from small cuts and sores. They are usually made out of a light weight pack cloth.
- Dog in Basket – Tired or injured dog carried in sled.
- Double Lead – Two dogs that lead the team side by side.
- Indian Dog – An Alaskan Husky from an Indian village.
- Lead Dog or Leader – Dog(s) who run in front of others and are generally must be both intelligent and fast.
- Swing Dog/Dogs – Dogs that runs directly behind the leader and help “swing” the team in the turns or curves.
- Malamute – A registered breed, larger than most sled dogs Term often used by old timers for any sled dog Breed not often used in mushing teams.
- Neck Line – A line that connects a dog's collar to the tow line and between the two collars of a double lead
- Pedaling – Pushing the sled with one foot while the other remains on the runner
- Rigging – Collection of lines to which dogs are attached and includes towline, tug lines and necklines.
- Runners – Two bottom pieces of the sled that come in contact with the snow and extend back to the basket for the driver to stand on. Runners are usually wood, covered with plastic or Teflon, which is usually replaced at least once during the Race.
- Slats - Thin strips of wood that make up the bottom of a wooden sled basket.
- Snow Hook or Ice Hook – A heavy piece of metal attached to sled by line and embedded in the snow in order to hold the team for short periods of time.
- Snub Line – Rope attached to the sled used to tie the sled to a tree or other object.
- Stove Up – Injured generally temporary and applies to both mushers and dogs.
- Tether Line – A long chain with shorter pieces of chain extending from it and used to stake out a team when stakes aren't available.

ANIMAL WELFARE

The Iditarod Trail Committee (ITC) takes great pride in its role of providing excellence in canine athlete care, not only during the race but also through an extensive program of pre-race veterinary screening.

- A licensed veterinarian performs a complete pre-race physical examination on each canine athlete within 14 days of the race start. Within 30 days of the race start, each dog receives an ECG evaluation to check for heart abnormalities. Since the implementation of this measure, four canine athletes have not been allowed to race.
- Pre-race blood work (CBC's and Chemistry panels) is performed on each canine athlete.
- All canine athletes are identified with a microchip implant.
- All canine athletes have current vaccinations and are de-wormed within 10 days of the race start.
- Rookie mushers are required to complete qualifying races of considerable distance before entering the Iditarod to ensure that they are experienced in providing the proper care (nutrition, hydration, rest, etc.) for their teams. In addition, the ITC hosts a mandatory two-day rookie seminar in December prior to the race.
- In addition to the high standard of care provided by the mushers themselves, 35 licensed, professional veterinarians, volunteer their time on the trail to perform routine evaluations and administer any necessary treatments.
- During the Race itself, well over 10,000 planned checkpoint examinations take place.
- Canine care diaries are carried by each musher and are utilized by the mushers and veterinarians at each checkpoint to serve as a written medical record for each athlete in the race.
- All mushers competing in the Iditarod are members of P.R.I.D.E., which stands for "Providing Responsible Information on a Dog's Environment" and is an organization whose membership consists of a wide variety of mushers, veterinarians and other interested individuals from around the world. Those familiar with sled dogs will appreciate the guidelines established by P.R.I.D.E. as being sound advice for the care of this special breed of dog.
- The International Sled Dog Veterinary Medical Association (I.S.D.V.M.A.) published The Musher and Veterinary Handbook, a highly regarded resource which provides important information to the musher and veterinarian alike. As an organization consisting primarily of medical professionals with an interest in and/or experience in working with sled dogs, the I.S.D.V.M.A. actively promotes and encourages their welfare and safety. Many members of the organization have served as trail veterinarians during the Iditarod itself. The I.S.D.V.M.A. also supports and encourages scientific research to further a better understanding of the racing sled dog.

- Race policies and rules are written with the greatest emphasis on the proper care and treatment of the canine athletes. Any musher found guilty of inhumane treatment will be disqualified and banned from competition in future Iditarod's.
- Ongoing, random drug testing is conducted throughout the race. In the 10 years of this program, no drug test has ever been positive.
- The result of these efforts is a level of health care and screening that even an overwhelming majority of the human population will never experience

SPECIAL AWARDS HISTORY

HONORARY MUSER

Leonhard Seppala was honored as the number 1 musher through 1979. In 1980, the Iditarod Committee decided to have "Wild Bill" Shannon share the honor. Since then, the directors have chosen a person or persons, not necessarily mushers, who have made a significant contribution to the sport of sled dog racing. The Honorary Musher is listed as the first one out of the starting chute.

GCI DOROTHY G. PAGE HALFWAY AWARD

While there was obviously a “first musher to the halfway point” in every race, there are no records of who that person was prior to 1980 when the first Halfway Award was presented. GCI became the sponsor of this award in 1994. The winning musher receives the award on the spot and then it is symbolically presented in Nome. This award, given in honor of the late “Mother of the Iditarod,” is presented in Iditarod in the odd years when the race follows the southern trail from Ophir to Kaltag, and at Cripple in the even years when the northern trail is followed. The first musher to Iditarod will receive a trophy and $3,000 in gold nuggets symbolic of the history of this interior area of the Iditarod Mining District. A beautiful perpetual trophy made of Alaskan birch and marble and featuring a photograph of the late Dorothy G. Page remains year round at Iditarod headquarters.

WELLS FARGO'S GOLD COAST AWARD

This was first presented in 1987 and again in 1988. After not having a Gold Coast Award for four years, the National Bank of Alaska (now Wells Fargo Bank Alaska) began sponsoring the award in 1993. The first musher into Unalakleet is presented with a beautiful trophy and $3,500 worth of gold nuggets. The presentation takes place in Unalakleet and again at the banquet in Nome. A beautiful perpetual trophy commemorating this award is on display year-round at the Iditarod headquarters.

RED LANTERN AWARD

The Red Lantern Award goes to the last musher across the finish line. The award is traditionally presented at the Red Lantern Banquet. However, in 1998 Brad Pozarnsky became the first red lantern winner to cross the finish line in time to be recognized at the first banquet in Nome and in 2002 and since then, in 2010 – 2014, the Red Lantern has been awarded at the first banquet.

PENAIR'S SPIRIT OF ALASKA AWARD

PenAir traditionally presents this award to the first musher into McGrath. The award was chosen to reflect the perseverance and hard work of the Iditarod mushers just as it serves as PenAir's slogan and embodies its long history in serving the state of Alaska. The musher receives an original "spirit mask," specifically created for this event by Bristol Bay artist, Orville Lind, and $500 credit on PenAir towards air travel or freight shipments.

MUSHERS CHOICE AWARD

Each year, the official finishers make the decision as to who of their number was the most inspirational on the trail. In 2010, ExxonMobil became the sponsor of the award. The winner is presented with an Iditarod Limited Edition Gold Coin, which is valued at $3,990, surrounded by a gold chain rope.

THE LAKEFRONT ANCHORAGE'S FIRST MUSHER TO THE YUKON AWARD

This award was originally presented in 1983 and 1984. Three years later, race sponsor Regal Alaskan Hotel (then the Millennium and now The Lakefront Anchorage) began sponsoring this award. The winning musher receives a seven-course dinner at either Ruby or Anvik (depending on whether the race is on the northern or southern route) and $3,500 in $1 bills as an "after-dinner mint," served up in a commemorative gold pan. At the banquet in Nome, this is presented again. A commemorative plaque hangs year-round at Iditarod headquarters.

DONLIN GOLD SPORTSMANSHIP AWARD

A sportsmanship award was initiated in 1977 by the Alaska Native Brotherhood to honor Native musher Ken Chase. The ANB continued to present the Ken Chase Sportsmanship Award through 1982. Since then, the award has been presented by the Iditarod Trail Committee, and various other sponsors, to the person chosen by his/her peers as the best sportsman on the trail. In 2015, Donlin Gold began sponsoring the award. The winner will receive a $3,500 check and a commemorative trophy.

JERRY AUSTIN MEMORIAL ROOKIE OF THE YEAR AWARD

There has obviously been a top finishing rookie in every Iditarod. In fact, rookies won the first three races. It wasn't until 1976 that the top-finishing rookie was not the winner. In 1979, the city of St. Michael instituted an award honoring the top-finishing rookie. When the City elected not to continue the award the following year, Jerry and Clara Austin picked it up and continued to present the award each year. For purposes of this award, a rookie is defined as a musher racing his/her first Iditarod. Since 1981, Jerry and Clara Austin have presented a beautiful trophy to the top-placing rookie, along with a check for $1,500. Following Jerry's death in 2010, the award was renamed the Jerry Austin Memorial Rookie of the Year Award.

CITY OF NOME LOLLY MEDLEY MEMORIAL GOLDEN HARNESS AWARD

Lolly Medley, Wasilla harness maker and one of only two women to run the second Iditarod in 1974, began presenting a golden harness to an outstanding lead dog, chosen by the mushers, in 1977. Lolly Medley died in August 1996. The award continues in her honor, now presented by the City of Nome.
